Election Set for Gas Franchise

The city council in a special session Thursday evening passed an ordinance to grant a 10-year franchise with two five - year options to Associated Natural Gas Company. The ordinance is subject to approval of a majority of the qualified voters.

A special election to approve the ordinance, which in effect renews the company's franchise, was set for June 13.

The company's 20-year franchise expires in October, city clerk John Vaughn said.

The ordinance grants the natural gas company the same rights, privileges and restrictions it has had for the past 20 years. But the period of the franchise is shortened.

The ordinance grants the company a 10 - year franchise with a provision that it renews for a five - year period automatically, unless the city gives the company notice to the contrary six months prior to expiration, city attorney Manuel Drumm said.

Two five - year options are included in the ordinance. The ordinance provide that 5 per cent of the income from residential service will be paid the city as franchise tax payment. The payments are made on a monthly basis.

In other action, the council accepted an application for a 5 per cent liquor license filed by Mrs. Janet Spitler to operate an establishment at 136 Front. The premises will be inspected by Police Chief Arthur Bruce and Mayor Kendall Sikes before the license is granted, acting mayor Harry Dudley said.

Charleston Man Dies of Stab Wounds

CHARLESTON - James Robinson, 27, died Thursday at 5 p.m. in the Missouri Delta Community hospital at Sikeston, from stab wounds earlier Thursday. Gathellia Lampkin, 20, is being held by authorities for investigation.

Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons said he and city policeman Spencer Presson, were called to the home of Miss Lampkin's mother, Mrs. Bertha Lampkin, 414 W. Market, about 4 p.m. Officers said that Miss Lampkins and Robinson had been arguing before the stabbing occurred. Robinson was stabbed twice in the chest and in the back with a small paring knife, Simmons said.

Robinson was taken to the Sikeston hospital, where he died shortly after arrival.

An inquest will be held Saturday at 9 a.m. at Sparks Funeral Home.

Toll Bridge Attendant Murdered

CHESTER, Ill. -- A toll collector at the Chester bridge was murdered in a holdup last night.

Police said Joseph Gagnepain, 55, died shortly after 1 a.m. today after sustaining a gunshot wound in the head between 10:55 p.m. and 11:05 p.m. Thursday night.

Gagnepain, who had been working at the bridge for two years, had just begun his shift when the apparent holdup and murder occurred, police said.

The murder weapon was believed to have been a .38 caliber weapon.

Taken in the holdup was between $40 and $60 in change. Money bags in a drawer were not taken.

The police reported that at 10:55 p.m. last night a bus went through the toll gate and signed a charge ticket. At 11:05 p.m. a truck driver found Gagnepain lying on the floor but alive. He never regained consciousness.

Another truck driver stated that he went through the toll gate about 11 p.m. and saw another man in the office with Gagnepain.

At 1:50 a.m. today Cairo, Ill., authorities made an arrest of a suspect who had in his possession $11.85 in change. He is being held by authorites for investigation.

Rockefeller and Hearnes Plan Toll Road Talks

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - Gov. Warren E. Hearnes will meet with Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller at Little Rock May 22 to discuss plans to join the toll road efforts of Missouri and Arkansas.

Earlier this week Rockefeller met with Gov. John McKeithen of Louisiana to coordinate their efforts for toll turnpikes. One of routes being discussed would join Kansas City and New Orleans.

Hearnes has said a toll road south from Kansas City will have top priority in feasibility studies under a turnpike bill passed by the legislature last week.

In a news conference Thursday Hearnes said he also had been conferring with Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois about the possibility of a bi-state compact on air pollution but had learned little new information.

He declined to speculate about the Senate Appropriations Committee's action in whacking about $25 million from his budget recommendations.

"Until the Senate committee report is debated on the floor and the conference committee meets," he said, "it isn't clear what will come out."

Vietnam Casualties

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON -- American fighting men in Vietnam are now waging the fifth bloodiest war in U.S. history -- a history marked by nine wars since the battle for independence began in 1775.

Official Defense Department statistics list World War II as the most costly of the U.S. encounters, with the others, in order: The Civil War, World War I, Korea, Vietnam, War for Independence, War of 1812 and the Mexican War.

The toll has been heavy: over 1 million Americans have been killed and over 1.3 million wounded in connection with battlefield operations.

Through April 1, 1967, in Vietnam, 8,754 Americans have been killed in action, 1,851 GIs have died from noncombat causes and 51,601 men have been listed as wounded. Current total U.S. armed services' strength is about 3.5 million.

Some idea of the fierceness of World War II -- the world's biggest -- can be gleaned from this comparison: the total American fighting force of 16.1 million in World War II was less than five times bigger than the current military strength, yet the number of American battlefield deaths then -- 291,557 -- was about 34 times greater than the number U.S. victims in the Vietnam War so far.

In addition, the United States lost 113,000 men from noncombat-related deaths and had more than 670,000 men wounded.

Besides being the biggest, World War II also was the first war in which the number of men killed in action exceeded the number dying from other causes -- usually diseases.

In World War I, the third largest war in the U.S. history, 53,400 Americans were killed in action and 63,100 died from other reasons. Some 200,000 men were wounded of the total 4.7 million Americans in uniform.

The Korean War, more similar than any other to the Vietnamese struggle, saw the World War II trend continue: about 33,600 Americans died in action; another 20,600 died from other causes and 103,300 men were wounded.

Thus far in the Vietnam war, the number of American noncombat deaths is 1,851, compared to the 8,754 who had been killed in action as of April 1 or died while captured or in battlefield-connected accidents.

The most difficult war to assess statistically is the War between the North and South. The Pentagon only keeps official records of Union losses, which amount to 264,500 dead and 282,000 wounded during the four-year struggle that began in 1861.

Unofficial Confederate statistics list about 133,800 Dixie deaths in connection with the war, not counting an estimated 30,000 who died in Northern prisons. No estimates of Southern wounded were available and estimates of the total number serving in the Army of the South ranged from 600,000 to 1.5 million. About 2.2 million men were in the Northern ranks.

Despite the statistical vagueness, the Pentagon lists the Civil War as the second bloodiest struggle in U.S. history.

America's first three wars - The Revolutionary War from 1775 to 1783; the War of 1812 that lasted through 1815; and the Mexican War, 1846-1848, cost less than 9,000 lives in all.

It is estimated that around 200,000 men were under arms at the time of the Revolutionary War. That struggle for freedom took 4,400 American lives and left 6,200 men wounded.

The U.S. military force grew to 286,000 by 1812. Despite that increase, the battle with the British left fewer scars. About 2,250 Americans were killed and 4,500 were wounded during the three-year war.

By the time of the Mexican War, the military machine had shrunk to 78,000 men. The war took 1,700 American lives and wounded 4,150.

America's least costly war was the short-lived Spanish American Battle in 1898. Although 306,000 Americans were under arms at the time, only 385 U.S. lives were lost in battle. Another 2,060 men died from other causes, about 400 more than suffered wounds.

The number of men dying from fever, disease and other causes in America's earlier wars is not known because no accurate records were kept.

College Survey Made

Questionnaires designed to measure student interest in a community college have been delivered to 17 Southeast Missouri high schools, Robert Mitchell, chairman of the community college study committee, said today.

Twenty-two questions on the forms aim to find if students in Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid and Stoddard counties would attend a community college if one were available.

The proposed college would offer both terminal vocational education courses and standard college courses. Emphasis would be on the vocational courses, Mitchell said.

The two - year college would not be in competition with Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau, Mitchell continued. It would provide standard college courses along with vocational courses, so if a student decided to work for a bachelor's degree later, some of the courses would transfer.

Questions on the forms will be answered by about 3,000 seniors and sophomores in the following schools: New Madrid, Charleston, East Prairie, Parma, Lilbourn, Matthews, Morehouse, Richland, Bell City, Advance, Dexter, Bloomfield, Chaffee, Oran, Benton, R-4, Morley R-5 and Sikeston R-6.

The total valuation of the 17 school districts according to the 1965-66 assessment is about $129,000,000, Mitchell reported.

The forms were prepared by the study committee in co-operation with the state department of education and Don Littrell, Portageville, area community development agent of the University of Missouri Extension Division.

The students' answers will be tabulated by June 15, and will be used as a vital part of the feasibility study being conducted.

Other factors being studied include: cost of buildings, cost of operations, probable enrollment, assessed valuation of area to be included and curriculum. Other community colleges and junior colleges are being contacted for pertinent information, Mitchell said.

The results of the feasibility study, including the tabulation of information on the questiontionnaires, will be presented in August to the area key persons committee for the establishment of a community college.

If the results show enough interest in a community college to merit further action, the key persons committee will prepare to petition for a vote on the issue.

To have a vote called, 5 per cent of the highest number of votes cast for a school board member in each district in the last election must sign a petition calling for a vote.

The petitions would then be submitted to the state department of education for approval to call an election and set the date of the election.

A location would not be chosen for the establishment of the college until after the issue would be approved and the trustees elected.

DAEOC Grants Phillips, Graves Another Hearing

PORTAGEVILLE -- The Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation board of directors will grant another hearing to Lloyd Phillips and William Graves at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the organization's headquarters, Robert Edwards, president of the six - county board, said today.

Edwards called Clyde Cahill, attorney for the Office of Economic Opportunity regional office in Kansas City, Thursday to find why another hearing should be held.

The DAEOC board voted 17-8 not to grant another hearing to the men when a directive from the Kansas City office calling for another hearing was presented at the Monday night meeting in Portageville.

Graves and Phillips were dismissed by the board following a hearing on March 26, Edwards said.

Cahill said the Kansas City office was mainly concerned that the board comply with OEO guidelines. The Kansas City office maintains that in the previous hearing Phillips and Graves were not given sufficient notice to prepare for the hearing. The office also said they were not provided with counsel.

Edwards said a bill of particulars stating which discrepencies the men are charged with will be presented to them today so they will have five days to prepare for the hearing.

"We hope they will have counsel to advise them at the hearing," Edwards said. They will be notified of their right to have counsel, he said.

The Kansas City office threatened to suspend the DAEOC board and channel the funds for the poverty programs through other delegate agencies, if the board did not grant another hearing and comply with OEO guidelines, Edwards said.

Cahill said the funding for the programs such as Head Start were not in jeopardy, but that other delegate agencies would be used in administering the programs if the board did not comply.

Members of the DAEOC board were notified of the new hearing Thursday.

The hearing will be closed to the public, but open to the press, Edwards said.

Ship Bumping Blame Disputed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The dispute over two collisions of U.S. and Soviet warships in the Sea of Japan was a standoff today. Each side accused the other of causing the bumps.

It appeared to add up to another round in the cold war game of "chicken."

The United States charged the Soviet navy with harassing U.S. Navy vessels on the high seas. The Soviets charged the American Navy with provocations.

The United States claimed the U.S. destroyer Walker warned away the two Soviet destroyers that jostled her — one on Wednesday and the other Thursday — but that the warnings were spurned.

The Soviets claimed the skippers of their destroyers "drew the attention of the Americans to the impermissibility of getting dangerously close," but that the U.S. ships ignored this. American announcements have given no hint of any Soviet warnings.

The United States demanded that the Soviet Union take prompt steps to end the harassments.

The Soviets countered with a warning about "the kind of results" that could result from alleged provocations.

The State Department took its stand in public statements and formal protests to the Soviet Embassy. Moscow spoke through its state-run radio.

An aide said President Johnson considered the collisions a matter of concern.

U.S. defense officials said they see no link between the clashes in the Japan Sea and the war in Vietnam. There has

Highway Hiring Practices to Be Investigated

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - The Missouri House will investigate the hiring practices of the State Highway Department -covering alleged discrimination on racial, political and residential levels.

The House voted 105-27 Thursday in favor of a resolution by Rep. John Conley, D-St. Louis, to establish a five - member committee to conduct the probe.

Rep. Robert O. Snyder, R-Kirkwood, wanted it to cover politics because of recent charges that student applicants for summer jobs were being screened by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' patronage assistant.

Others said it was apparent there was a lack of confidence in the hiring procedures of the department and they should be investigated.

If the department has nothing to hide, they said, it should welcome the probe. And if there is something wrong it should be brought into the open.

The five - member committee is to report its findings to the House before midnight June 30.

Arson Trial Changed to Madrid Court

BENTON -- The trial of two Sikeston men charged with arson in connection with the Oct. 28, 1966 burning of a house and a barn near Oran, was postponed Thursday in circuit court.

The attorney for Mike DuBois and David Gilliland filed an application to disqualify Judge Marshall Craig from hearing the case and sought a change of venue. Both were granted.

The case will be transferred to New Madrid and Judge William Ragland will preside. The date has not been set, Scott county prosecuting attorney Fielding Potashnick said today.

The Sikeston men are known for their portrayal of Batman and Robin at a Sikeston teenage night spot.

The house that burned was the property of Bill and Joe Fisher. It was located about three miles north of Oran. The barn was the property of John Spooler and was located about two miles west of New Hamburg.

Gilliland is charged with arson in connection with both incidents. DuBois is charged with arson in connection with the house that burned. The charge of arson against DuBois in connection with the barn burning was dismissed following the preliminary hearing in magistrate court at Sikeston, Dec. 20.

Thompson Trial Set for May 17

BLOOMFIELD - The trial of Tommy Lee Thompson, 18, Sikeston, charged with burglary and stealing, is to be held Wednesday in circuit court.

Judge William Billings will hear the case, Scott County prosecuting attorney Fielding Potashnick said.

Thompson is charged in connection with the Feb. 17, 1965, burglary of the Daris Burgess residence, 842 Ruth in Sikeston.

Thompson was acquitted of a first degree murder charge Dec. 9, 1966, in circuit court at Jackson in connection with the Feb. 1, 1965, slaying of Mrs. W. R. Lewis, Sikeston.

Cave Explorers Find No Trace of Lost Boys

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) —Weary mud-grimed rescuers made their fifth and final sweep of Murphy's Cave today, hoping that somehow in nearly 40 hours of painstaking search they missed three boys believed lost in the cave.

No one appeared willing to call off the search for Joel (Joey) Hoag, 13; his brother, Billy 11, and a playmate, Edwin Craig Dowell, 14, also of Hannibal.

The disappearance of the boys recalled the writings of Hannibal's Mark Twain and the fictional adventures of Huck Finn and Tom Sawyer in these same caves around this Mississippi River town.

"We'll keep plugging if the authorities here want us to," said William Karras of Washington, D.C., head of the National Speleological Society's cave rescue team.

But Karras said he doesn't feel that the boys are in the cave. For two nights and one day spelunkers-cave explorers —from Missouri and Illinois crawled through winding narrow passages in search of the boys, retracing their steps again and again on the chance they have missed that one passage.

But there was no evidence— not even a button—to indicate that the boys ever entered the cave except for the word of two boys who saw them go in Wednesday.

"We don't know what else to do," sighed Karras. Bone-tired searchers standing in a loose circle around Karras nodded agreement.

However, they collected their gear again for a last sweep through the cave and another check of two more caves 300 yards to the east. All three cave openings were exposed by a construction crew cutting a roadbed for a new federal highway through the south side of Hannibal.

The last real hope that the boys would be found in Murphy's Cave was a section of the northeast corner which was sealed off early in the search by a rock fall. Two police dogs brought into the cave went directly to the rock fall and scratched at its base.

The fall was about 20 feet to the right of the cave entrance, which is located about one-third of the way up a steep bluff sheared to a cliff by blasting crews. Still another fall choked the passage further. Rescuers dug from the outside of the bluff behind the rock fall and opened the passages beyond. They found nothing.

But just to be certain, they

Charleston Board Sets Auction of R-1 Property

CHARLESTON--The Charleston R-1 board of education set June 10 as the date for a public auction of certain school property, heard and approved a proposal to set up a non-graded curriculum for grades 1-3, and discussed the progress of federal aid programs in the school system.

The property to be auctioned by the board conists of a house on Danforth street and the properties will be sold to the highest bidder at the June 10 sale.

The new arrangement for the first three grades of the elementary school was explained to the board by William Sellers, assistant superintendent of elementary education here.

Sellers pointed out that, under the new arrangement, children will be grouped together and their progress through what, in the past, has been the first three grades will be based on scholastic accomplishments.

The major difference between the new system and the old, he added, will be the absence of grades as such.

Frank Hudson, supervisor of the federal aid programs here, explained to the board the progress which was being made in these areas.

In other business, the board hired Leonard LaBlanc, a former Charleston restaurant owner, as food service supervisor for the schools here.

Superman Is Reporter for Daily Standard

Would you believe that the Daily Standard has a reporter named Clark Kent on the staff? Well, would you believe Superman?

Thursday afternoon the newsroom received a telephone call from a Caruthersville newspaperman, who asked if he could speak to Clark Kent.

Thinking that the caller was putting him on, a Daily Standard reporter replied that no one by the name of Clark Kent was employed at the Standard. "Superman's here though, Do you want to talk to him? he asked.

The Caruthersville caller was awed by the reply and then said that he was checking out a job reference of a prospective employe who had used Clark Kent of the Daily Standard for a reference.

So if you see a man dressed in a blue costume with a red cape and an "S" embroidered on the chest flying over Sikeston, don't be alarmed. It's only a Daily Standard reporter covering a story for the paper.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
NATIONAL TRANSPORTATION WEEK

National Transportation Week will be observed this year from May 14 through 20. It has great significance to the vitality and future of this sprawling nation.

Even if you've never tried to sell ice cubes to an Eskimo in the middle of the Arctic night, the role of transport in modern economic life is apparent. Things are not very valuable until you take them someplace where they are wanted. Under the impetus of need and the opportunity of free enterprise, America can boast the largest, most versatile and efficient transport systems in the world. The consumer is the beneficiary. Volume production and lowest possible prices depend on coast-to-coast marketing - and that we have with automobiles in California (a mixed blessing) and lettuce in Detroit at any time of the year.

During Transportation Week, it will be emphasized that as a nation our future will depend on wise, comprehensive development of all modes of transport - rail, highway, air and water. For common carriers, government regulation is a great factor for good or ill. And here the future and the public interest demand that close attention be given to the concept of maximum competitive freedom for all with legislative advantage for none.

ACCENT ON YOUTH

Sen. Charles H. Percy (R Ill.) speaks at the Berkeley campus of the University of California on Monday (May 15).

A more than expected accent on youth is developing this far in advance of the scramble for the 1968 nominations and elections. The Democratic National Committee recently sent 40 Democratic House members, most of them young men, to campuses all over the country. The emphasis was on classroom participation and informal discussion.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's charisma for youth is so well established as scarcely to be worth detailing. His brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (Mass.), shares his Pied Piperism.

Gov. George Romney (R) of Michigan, who is certainly the front-runner for the G.O.P. nomination for President in 1968 - he's been beating President Johnson in the opinion polls recently - is busily appealing to youth. He took pains in a visit to Atlanta May 1 to meet with students at Morehouse College, a predominantly Negro Baptist school, and Emory University, which is largely white. His reception at Emory was noticeably warmer than at Morehouse.

It was on the latter campus that Romney delivered his blunt: "I have been raised from childhood with the firm belief that the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States are divinely inspired documents and as a result I have fought in my private life and in my public life to eliminate social injustice and racial discrimination."

The latest among the 1968 eligibles to turn to youth is freshmen Sen. Charles H. Percy (R Ill.), as evidenced by his mid-May appearances on the campuses at Berkeley and Southern California. Percy is no longer a dark horse, but, say a chestnut or even a gray. He said he was not a candidate for 1968 at a news conference in Concord, N. H., on April 7 but refused to rule out a change of mind next year.

Chuck Percy looks younger than his 48 years. He is well scrubbed and has a kind of Ivy League look. He has a clear deep voice and a polished manner. He is most telegenic. The Wall Street Journal notes his "Kennedy-like image."

Some of Percy's ideas seem likely to appeal especially to youth. "We owe it to the men who must fight our wars to promote peace and peaceful contact in every way we can. If we must accelerate the war - as the administration believes we must - then let us accelerate the pursuit of peace."

Percy favors not only open housing. On April 20 he introduced a bill - with the co-sponsorship of all other Republican Senators - that would set up a Comsat-type of non-profit corporation to float bonds to fund private sponsors for building or repairing homes for low-income families. Other Percy ideas have a similar fresh appeal to youth.

Party surveys show that only 35 per cent of college students now regard themselves as Democrats - a remarkable falling off from the days of President John F. Kennedy. Republicans are being drawn, if they are not pushing, into the vacuum.

And the Democrats are beginning to take fearful notice. On April 25 the National Committee announced plans for a "resources panel" of young people to capture the loyalty or at least the attention of their fellows.

Perhaps you have asked yourself - "With the federal government spending so much money on medical research, why do voluntary health agencies concern themselves with research?"

One of the leading physicians at the National Institutes of Health said: "In its conservative fashion, the Government is more likely to follow than to lead. Our support of research, therefore, is very largely limited to specifically defined research projects."

Who then must do the leading? The voluntary health agencies.

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society is an example. During the past year, the Society gave funds to the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness of the U.S. Public Health Service in order to begin a study on multiple sclerosis that looks promising but for which the federal government had not budgeted. Thus precious time was saved because the voluntary agency could act quickly.

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society has budgeted $1,000,000 for research in 1967. It will continue to investigate all hopeful, direct approaches to uncover the reasons for MS and related diseases, and to find an effective treatment. Since 1946, approximately seven million dollars has been expended on medical and scientific research by the Society.

To continue to delve into the mystery of MS, your dollars are needed. The partnership between government and a voluntary agency to compliment and supplement one another is a truly American phenomenon. Another is that we help one another - so please give generously when the MS volunteer calls.

May very well reap just about what he sowed."

This message is contained in The Travelers Insurance Companies annual highway accident booklet, which reports 52,500 deaths and 4,400,000 injuries last year. Statistics in the booklet were compiled from reports by state motor vehicle departments.

Excessive speed is blamed for more than 41 percent of the highway deaths in 1966. It is the largest single factor in all fatal accidents resulting from driver error.

Other major factors involving actions of drivers resulting in deaths and injuries include driving on the wrong side of the road, reckless driving and not having the right-of-way.

Drivers in 1966 were blamed for more than 80 percent of all fatal accidents while pedestrians, or a combination of pedestrian and driver, were found at fault in the remaining 20 percent.

To help prevent accidents, a Travelers spokesman suggests that drivers update driving skills by taking a driver refresher course; practice 'defensive driving'; limit driving when tired; adjust speed to highway weather, traffic and other conditions; and don't drive under the influence of alcohol.

He also urged motorists to support better law enforcement, highway improvement, and improved driver licensing.

SWELL LEADS

John's conscience bothered him as he confided to a close friend:

"I have made love to many women. I'm going to my wife tonight and confess and beg her forgiveness."

So to his wife he confided his flames.

Naturally she was hurt and asked, "Was it Mrs. Green?"

"I won't tell you," came the reply.

"Was it Mrs. Brown?"

"Was it Mrs. Casey?"

"Well," retorted the now angered wife, "if you won't tell me who they are, I won't forgive you."

The next day John met his friend who asked:

"Listen John, did your wife forgive you?"

"No, Bill, she didn't, but she gave me some swell leads."

The king had arranged a truly regal marriage for his daughter. She had married the crown prince of their rich and powerful neighboring country and this union held great promise to unite these two nations.

Although the king was delighted with the ceremony, he was bothered by the cold, correct formality with which the young couple treated each other. Troubled that the union may not be a success, he posted a spy outside of the bridal chamber to report on the wedding nights events.

The next morning the king's spy reported as follows: "I couldn't really tell how well they got along because of their odd behavior. As they entered the chamber the Princess said, "I offer you my honor" and the prince replied, "Madame, I honor your offer." And that is the way it went all night long -- honor, offer, honor, offer."

I asked a rich man, the founder and proprietor of a huge enterprise, if he didn't have to pinch himself when he contemplated the size of his company. I wondered that it could seem real to him.

'No,' he said, 'it's been so gradual. I've been at it fifty years. Most of the time I've been surprised that the growth was so slow.'

At first I thought the man was guilty of considerable conceit, but on reflection I concluded he had made a frank statement.

PASSING A CEMETERY in the wee hours of the morning, a drunk noticed a sign that read: Ring the Bell for the Caretaker. He did just that and a sleepy-eyed man staggered to the gate.

"What do you want at this hour?" the man demanded.

The drunk looked the caretaker over a minute and then retorted, "I want to know why you can't ring the blasted bell yourself?"

H. L. Hunt Says

SHAME OF THE CITIES

Millions of words are constantly being uttered and written about the problems of our nation's cities, but most of this flood of language ignores the greatest problem of all in connection with these metropolitan areas. That problem is the present Electoral College System of electing the President of the United States.

This system perpetuates the mid - city political machines, both Democratic and Republican, by controlling bloc groups dictating the nominations for President and thus deciding upon the candidates the electorate will have a chance to support. The more constructive voice of Americans living in suburban areas, small towns and the country is drowned out.

The Electoral College System needs to be reformed. The best reform would be the Congressional District Reform Plan, which goes under the nickname of CONDIRP. The plan is both effective and simple. It would provide for one presidential and vice-presidential elector from the state at large. They would be elected by the constituents of the members of Congress upon whom their tenure as electors is based.

CONDIRP would bring the election of our two top executives closer to the people. Every person's vote would count for as much in the outcome as any other person's vote. No longer would all of a state's electoral vote go to the candidate receiving more votes -- and it could be just one more vote -- than his closest runnerup. The people should call on Congress to submit the necessary constitutional amendment to the states before the public wonders astray or desist in despair. HLH.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

IN AND OUT OF THE CIA

Italy's Union Chief Askes U.S. Labor For $18 Million Annually to Fight Communists.

Washington, D. C.: -- In "central intelligence" they operate on the theory that the price is always right if the "information" or operation is vital to survival of this nation and its interests.

How high is right? Judge for yourself. In Rome, an Italian labor leader once asked former Teamsters' leader, blue - eyed Dave Beck, for $18 million annually just to "compete" with what the Communist Party of Italy was throwing into union organizing work.

Even Dave Beck blanched to his bald pate. But he had asked a direct question. He got a direct answer from Giulio Pastore, then chief of the Confederation of Italian Labor Syndicates (CISL) and now Minister without portfolio in the Italian cabinet. (I vouch for this story.)

I was there when Beck asked Pastore how much it would take for an effective counteraction against the Communist apparatus. We were in Pastore's office. With us were Beck's son and two representatives of the AFL. That was in 1953. Characteristically, Beck raised a few dollars and contributed an automobile. But some one had to pay the bill to save Italy from first being crippled by Communist - led general strikes -- and then from seizure by paramilitary action squads in factories, transport and on the docks.

Some of the money came from American labor. The bulk came from the Central Ingelligence Agency. It was dollar for ruble. Why not?

The most never diminished.

As late as 1962, Walter Reuther urged the U.S. government to make $2 million available for a fight in Italy. His strategy called for uniting all the Italian metal workers (steel, auto, shipbuilding, construction, etc.) in one big union. This was to include the anti - Communists, the Socialists, and the Communists in a mass federation. The $2 million was approved. The AFL - CIO President George Meany fought it. He would not have any dealings with the Communist unions -- no united front. He called the late President Kennedy. The project was killed.

But other operations were not. They're under way right now in Latin America, Africa and Asia. Why not? Britain's MI-6, France's Deuzieme Bureau and other national intelligence services manipulated similar fronts. The U. S. would be out in the cold if the CIA to kill its "labor unit."

But to know why the national AFL-CIO leaders such as George Meany are agitated by the reports of CIA funding, the public should know that the labor leaders were there long before the CIA was a gleam in Harry Truman's eye.

When the Nazis began gas chambering labor leaders, the garment workers' Davis Dubinsky went to Franklin Roosevel and got 300 visas for their entry into the U. S. The pepper needle trades' chief knew that some day, after the war was over, labor men would be needed to rebuild a free and anti-Communist movement.

The money then came from his ladies garment workers and the AFL. Later he and Jay Lovestone, a most unmysterious cloakless chap -- who worked with the Catholic underground as well as with those in the CIA who sought information -- and the late AFL first vice - president Matthew Woll launched the Free Trade Union Committee. They spent millions. But it was all labor money.

They worked closely with the labor desk of the Office of Strategic Services (OSS). Its chief was a Chicago labor lawyer, by name of Arthur Goldberg. By 1944 they were swinging. The CIA did not get into action until 1948. Then it had to pull together all the remnants of the old wartime OSS. By that time the AFL not only had Jay Lovestone and Irving Brown (a sort of Scarlet Pimpernel who knew every Communist cell and every great restaurant in Europe), but also Henry Rutz, a chap who did a skilled job in educating British and U. S. Army occupation officers. Rutz taught them the difference between Communists, pro - Communist Socialists, anti - Communist Socialists and Social Democrats.

This not - very - Ian Flemingish trio helped save West Berlin, Germany, France, Italy and Finland, too. Then the CIA came along. It has new covers today.

Not only were the anti - Communist union succored, free enterprise industry survived too. The Communists concentrated on the big plants owned by major American corporations. In the late 40s they sent their action squads into the plants. They used chains. They used spikes to cut tires of trucks bringing in workers. They theorized that by driving off American investments, Europe's economy would collapse.

It did not. But scores of millions had to be spent to rescue the basic force in any nation's infrastructure -- the labor force which, in the wrong hands, can decide on the day a country shall stand still.

Of course, millions are still being spent annually to save other continents. But this petty cash is far short of the $250 million which the Soviet Union spends a year on its front covers. What's wrong with trying to match each ruble with a penny or two? Freedom's worth it.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- In a world plagued with hunger, the bureaucrats inside the agriculture department are battling to reduce this country's wheat acreage.

They argue that a wheat cutback will push up prices and bring contentment to the farms, that contented farmers are more likely to vote next year to keep the Democrats in power.

This is callous reasoning at a time when the nation needs every bushel of wheat the farmers can grow to fight famine in India and to keep up our own dwindling grain reserves. The national wheat backlog has dropped below a seventh-month supply, which is considered dangerously low.

The backstage debate over wheat acreage has become almost a family squabble between former Minnesotans. Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman, a onetime Minnesota governor, has been pushed by his advisers into a position favoring acreage cuts.

He is vigorously opposed by Vice President Hubert Humphrey, a former senator from Minnesota, who wants to boost wheat production. Supporting the Vice President is his former senate aide, Herb Waters, who now heads the war - on - hunger program.

Freeman has pointed out in private conversations that the farmers, troubled over falling wheat prices, planted less than half of the 30 per cent increase in wheat acreage they were granted for the past season.

LBJ, POPE AGREE

The solution is not to cut back acreage, Humphrey has responded, but to increase the incentive for farmers. He has urged President Johnson to ask congress for higher wheat subsidies.

The President, a populist at heart, is emotionally committed to the war against hunger. He was briefed on the program at a national security council meeting last year by David Bell, then foreign aid administrator, who described the hunger in the world and the need for American food.

When Bell finished, the President slapped the table.

"We need to grow more wheat!" he declared emphatically.

Note: Herb Waters discussed the world food problem in the Vatican the other day with Pope Paul, who has been critical of the Vietnam war. Waters told him the American aim was not only to help feed the hungry but to teach them how to grow more food to feed themselves. "We are allies in this war," Pope said with a smile, referring to the war on hunger as opposed to the Vietnam war.

PENTAGON PADDING

The Pentagon, contradicting a Hanoi claim that 88,000 Americans were killed in Vietnam during the first nine months of 1966, charged that the figures were considerably inflated.

But the totals put out by the defense department -- 3,558 Americans dead and 41,000 Communists killed -- are also padded. The truth is that almost all Vietnamese killed in action, if they aren't wearing South Vietnamese uniforms, are lumped together as enemy dead. On occasion, this has even included women and children.

One combat soldier, whose name charitably is omitted, wrote to this column about the practice in his division.

"The daily enemy -- killed-in-action figures," he charged, "can be trusted as much as a paper bag can ge trusted to store water. Everyone killed who is not in a friendly uniform is counted as an enemy KIA.

"On one mission, I saw two unarmed men scamper from under some rocks and attempt to run away. One was shot through the heart; the other had his leg nearly severed by a M-16 round.

"The former was listed as an enemy KIA. Maybe he was. Maybe he was a villager who hid from the enemy just as he tried to hide from us.

"On another mission, a woman killed by aerial rocket artillery, fired from fire-breathing choppers, was likewise listed as an enemy KIA."

SUPPRESSED REPORT?

The Senate Republican Policy Committee's controversial report on the Vietnam war is being suppressed by its chairman, Sen. Bourke Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, who has rejected several offers from private publishing houses to reprint the report.

While he has been grandly turning down all publishers, however, Public Affairs Press has rushed the report into print without bothering to ask permission. Editor M. B. Schnapper contends that the report, prepared at the taxpayers' expense, is a public document.

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES

Sen. Steve Young, D-Ohio, the spryest elder statesman in the senate, has just written a penetrating diagnosis of Central Intelligence for Playboy magazine. It's published this month among all the undraped females. The CIA, incidentally, no longer uses sexy gals as spies. . . . Rep. Fred Schwengel, R-Iowa, who has promoted a color booklet about the U. S. Capital, on sale to tourists for $1, isn't making any money from it. Proceeds go to the Capital Historical Society, which Schwengel heads. Some of Schwengel's colleagues have been critical over the sale of the book through Capitol Guides. . . A Louisville police court held an Episcopalian Priest, Rev. Charles Brandets Tachau, on $5,000 bond in the recent open - housing demonstrations, while holding three Nazi - American demonstrations from Chicago for only $2,000. Father Tachau has now been released; but Buford Posey, formerly of Mississippi and now employed in the Gambian Embassy in Washington, is still under bond. Posey says he was arrested in Louisville while watching the demonstrations after a TV reporter remarked that he had come from Philadelphia, Miss. According to Posey this was enough to prompt the Louisville police to arrest him.

NEW YORK (AP) — Are you normal or just a wee bit balmy?

Many people get a regular dental and medical checkup, but never think of having their minds inspected. This is odd, because it is well known that one's mental outlook can materially affect one's physical welfare.

As the old saying goes, "It's all in the mind."

It isn't always necessary, however, to go to a headshrinker and have him paw through your ID and ego to find out whether you are well, well, well, or sick, sick, sick. In many cases you can do it yourself.

Here, for example, is a series of questions which can help you determine your sanity quotient:

When the alarm clock wakes you up on Monday morning, do you sometimes feel like just lying there in bed and crying until it is Tuesday?

Are you secretly convinced that half the people you meet nowadays don't know what they are talking about three-fourths of the time?

When a bank truck loaded with money goes by you in the street, do you idly wonder how you could rob it and get away with the loot?

If a pretty blonde at a cocktail party walks away from you to listen to somebody else, do you instantly decide that her neck is too scrawny or her legs are too big?

Have you bought at least one blue chip stock in the last 20 years that has gone down in value? If so, do you believe the guy you bought it from is either a fool or a fraud?

Can you lose your head when those around you are keeping theirs?

As the years roll by, are you finding it more and more difficult to get the tops off ketchup bottles?

Do you still prefer martinis to LSD or other forms of psychedelic drugs?

Are you finding it harder to sleep at night but easier to doze off while watching a television program on which prominent people discuss the so-called vital issues of the day?

Do you spend more time figuring how you'll be able to get by on your pension than you do thinking up ways you can get rich?

When someone tells you a new joke, does it remind you of two just like it you heard from your barber 15 years before?

Well, now let's look at your box score. If you answered "yes" to all the foregoing questions, put your mind at ease. You are normal as you need be, as sane as everyone else.

To put it bluntly, you're as sound as a nut.

Cape Hosts MIAA Thinclads

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- At least 10 conference records are in jeopardy this weekend as one of the most star-studded MIAA outdoor track meets in history gets underway at Southeast Missouri State College.

Action starts today at 4 p.m. with the preliminaries and finals of the shot put, long jump and javelin. Preliminaries in the 120-yard high hurdles, and the 440, 880, 220 and 100 events begin at 4:30.

Finals in the pole vault, high jump and discus begin at noon Saturday, and final running events at 12:30 p.m.

With good weather, almost the entire outdoor track record book could be rewritten. Conference athletes have already turned in times and distances that would eclipse existing marks.

Defending champion Northeast Missouri, with its outstanding corps of middle-distance runners, is favored to repeat for its ninth straight outdoor track title. Close competition, however, should be provided by the host Southeast Missouri team, with strength in the distance races and field events, and Central Missouri, a contender in the middle distances and dashes. Standout individuals from the other conference teams. Northwest Missouri, Southwest Missouri and the University of Missouri at Rolla, could place their teams well up in the final standings.

Records that have already been surpassed this season include:

220-yard dash (:21.3), where record - holder Willie Weaver of Central has clocked :21.1 this year;

880-yard run (1:53.6), owned by Central's Terry Cotter, who has run 1:53.5 this year. Central's Gary Mount and Glenn Thompson have also been near that mark, as have Ron Werling and Wayne Denney of Northeast;

Mile run (4:16.8), topped this season by Southeast's Bill Wirtz with a 4:13.7 time;

2-mile run (9:32), also beaten handily by Wirtz at 9:22;

440 intermediate hurdles (:55.1), where record - holder Bill Douglass of Southwest Missouri has this year run :54.9. Also threatening the record are Central's Lyle Anderson and Southeast's Dave Lehman;

440 relay (:41.8), shaded by Northeast's :41.6, and threatened by Central, Southeast and Southwest;

Mile relay (3:16.2), shattered earlier by Northeast in 3:10.4 (an average of :47.9 per man);

Long jump (23'3 3/4"), topped this season by Byron Russell of Central with a jump of 24'1 3'4";

Pole vault (14'1 3/4"), beaten at 14'9" by southeast's Dwain Bridges and threatened by record -holder Sandy Farrar of Southwest at 14'7"; Shot put (52'3 3/4"), topped by Southeast's Terry Coff with 53'9" and by Central's Dave Walls and Northeast's Paul Economides with 52' 8 1/2" each.

In addition to the record time and distances already beaten, performances this season indicate the possibility of records in all other events with the exception of the javelin. The javelin mark of 224'9" stands a full 15 feet beyond the best distance posted this year, a 209' throw by Southeast's Gene McClellan.

Pro Golf's Youngest Shoots 88 In Dallas Civitan Open

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Two veterans of the women's tour — Jo Ann Prentice and Shirley Englehorn — led the field, reduced by illness to 47 pros and five amateurs, in the $16,000 Dallas Civitan Open Golf Tournament today.

And they fought something new for this tournament that in the past has found rain the bugaboo — searing heat.

But heat didn't affect the littlest gal of them all —10-year-old Beverly Klass, youngest person ever to turn pro and youngest ever to play in a woman's open golf tournament.

The little girl (95 pounds but strong) shot an 88 in the first 18-hole round she ever played in an open tournament. It was last in the field but it was considered quite marvelous for one so young and inexperienced in the art of handling a golf ball.

"I played pretty good," she said, "but I hit a couple of bad shots — well, maybe more than that."

But she showed she wasn't tired or worried about the sapping heat — she went swimming for two hours.

Beverly goes out first today in the second round of the tournament that finds Misses Prentice and Englehorn, who fired four-under-par 67s Thursday, leading by two strokes.

Qualifing Runs Saturday For 500

By DALE BURGESS

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — An international field of drivers will make 10 - mile dashes against the clock Saturday in one of sport's best - attended preliminary events, qualifications for the 500 - mile auto race May 30 at Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

A crowd upwards of 150,000 is likely to watch Mario Andretti, Nazareth, Pa., try to beat the qualifying record of 165.899 m.p.h. he set last year.

Andretti, U.S. Auto Club champion the last two seasons, hit 168 unofficially in practice sessions both in 1966 and this spring when conditions were ideal.

His Ford - powered Brawner Hawk will be challenged by two entirely different types of machines — the STP Pratt & Whitney gas turbine driven by Parnelli Jones, Torrance, Calif., the 1963 Indianapolis winner, and the Mongoose turbocharged Offenhauser driven by Lloyd Ruby, Wichita Falls, Tex., who has never been worse than 11th in seven Speedway starts.

Jones has turned laps at almost 166 m.p.h. in the turbine. Ruby also has turned laps well over 165.

Indians, Twins, Braves Win

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pitching for Minnesota has made Ohio farmboy Dean Chance happier than a farmer with a pen full of hogs and the market price doubled.

The hard-firing right-hander, who had fallen on sad times since winning the Cy Young Award with the California Angels, is rounding up the scattered Twins and fattening them up as a pennant threat.

"With this team, I don't think I'm going to lose another game," Chance said in an expansive mood Thursday night after blanking Kansas City 8-0 on a one-hitter.

"It's fun when you win; it's fun to play the game," he said, responding to his 5-1 record which makes him the winningest pitcher in the American League. "It means something to play for a pennant contender because you know you're playing for something."

Chance, who operates two farms with a total of about 285 acres near Wooster, Ohio, also owns almost half of Minnesota's 11 victories and has kept the sluggish Twins tied for sixth, only 4½ games from the lead.

Steven Hargan and Bob Bruce also had reason to be jubilant. Hargan hurled a five-hitter in Cleveland's 2-1 victory over Washington in the only other American League game, and Bruce allowed only three hits in pitching Atlanta past Pittsburgh 9-2 in the only National League contest.

Chicago was rained out at Baltimore in the AL and Cincinnati got the same weather treatment at New York in the NL.

Chance, who fell to 15-10 in 1965 and then 12-17 last year after his 20 victories in 1964 earned him the Cy Young Award as baseball's best pitcher, is still rejoicing over the trade that brought him to the Twins.

"It's one of the biggest breaks I've had," he says of the deal in which the Twins gave up Don Mincher and Jimmie Hall to get him. Now he talks about being named comeback player of the year, winning 20 again and adding another Cy Young award.

"It's the difference between night and day with the runs this club gets me," said the 25-year-old hurler, who still is remembered for his escapades with Bo Belinsky as a member of the light-hitting Angels.

But the way Chance was throwing Thursday night, he only needed rookie Rich Reese's first major league homer with none on. Reese drove in two more runs and rookie Ron Clark socked in three more, but Chance made sure.

The only hit off him was Danny Cater's clean single in the fourth inning. He struck out eight and only six walks got him in trouble as he repaid the Twins for the one-hitter he threw against them in 1962.

Hargan, 3-3, did not have it so easy as he outdueled Camilo Pascual, 2-1. Hargan led 2-0 on two wild pitches that scored Fred Whitfield who doubled, and Chuck Hinton's run-scoring double.

But the Senators scored in the ninth inning when Hinton dropped a long fly for a three-base error after Frank Howard singled. However, Hargan struck out Paul Casanova to end the game.

Bruce breezed as the Braves jumped to a 4-0 lead against Tommie Sisk and added four unearned runs in the seventh, two on Felipe Alou's triple.

Sisk, who took the defeat, lasted on 3 1-3 innings. Gene Alley doubled home both Pittsburgh runs when Bruce faltered in the fourth inning before winning his second game in three decisions.

JERRY STOVALL Days in Charleston will be May 20 and 21. Stovall, defensive safety for the St. Louis football Cardinals, will speak to several local church groups during the two-day celebration.

NEARLY 5,000 school patrol members will convene to continue what must be one of baseball's longest hexes tonight when the St. Louis Cardinals take on the New York Mets at Busch Memorial Stadium in St. Louis.

The Cardinals have won all seven of the annual school patrol outings, and they will be out to keep the winning chain unbroken tonight.

The patrol members, representatives of some 350 schools in the St. Louis area and East out-state Missouri, will be greeted by special ceremonies prior to the Card-Met clash.

THE WRECK of the giant oil tanker...Torrey Canyon...in mid-March was more than just a human tragedy. In addition to fouling beaches in Cornwall and Brittany, the 120,000 gallons of oil that spilled out of the wreck killed thousands of water birds and marine creatures. Wildlife had again fallen victim to man and his increasingly complex environment.

Wildlife is fighting a losing battle with man for living space in all corners of the world. In the United States alone no fewer than 78 species - 16 mammals, 34 birds, 25 fish, one reptile, two amphibians - are considered "endangered."

An endangered species is defined as one whose prospects of survival and reproduction are in immediate jeopardy. Its peril may arise from one or more of several causes - disease, prediation, competition from a more agressive species, a change in habitat. An endangered species must have help lest extinction follow.

The various wild creatures making a last ditch fight for survival include both well known and obscure species. The whooping crame, grizzly bear, ivory-billed woodpecker and California condor are perhaps the most familiar names on the endangered list. The least familiar no doubt is the Devils Hole pupfish, a relic of the Ice Age, which is found only in a single, spring fed pool in Southern Nevada.

Clay's Next Fight Scheduled For June 5

HOUSTON (AP) — Cassius Clay's next fight is scheduled June 5 — but this one will be in a federal courtroom instead of the ring.

That's the date Clay has been ordered to stand trial on a charge of refusing to be inducted into the Army.

U.S. Dist. Judge Joe Ingraham set the trial date Thursday, three days after Clay was indicted by a federal grand jury.

The indictment came 10 days after Clay, who prefers to be known by his Black Muslim name of Muhammad Ali, refused to take the oath as a draftee.

Conviction could bring a fine of $10,000 and a five-year prison sentence.

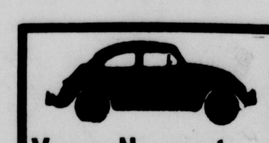

Clay was stripped of his world heavyweight boxing championship following his refusal to be inducted, but he had indicated he planned to continue his fighting career with overseas abouts.

Meanwhile, the 5th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans has denied a request for a temporary injunction restraining Clay's draft board from declaring him delinquent and instituting criminal action for his refusal to heed the call.

Quinnan Hodges of Houston, one of Clay's lawyers, said the injunction request will be delivered Monday to Justice Hugo Black of the U.S. Supreme Court.

The 5th Circuit Court also is to consider Monday motions to advance two appeals on the calendar and a motion to issue a writ of prohibition to stop the scheduled June 5 trial.

The two appeals are on civil cases filed in U.S. district courts here in which Clay contends his 1-A classification is unconstitutional and was brought about because of racial and religious prejudice and public opinion.

Draft Quota up Again in July

WASHINGTON AP -- The Defense Department Wednesday issued a July Draft call for induction of 19,900 young men to serve with the Army. It is the highest draft call this year.

The July quota is slightly higher than the 19,800 for June, and the 18,000 for May.

The low point came in February when only 10,900 were inducted.

Defense officials have said that draft calls will begin to rise about midyear to replace young men who were inducted under the sharply increased Vietnam buildup which began in the late summer of 1965.

Prof Says Twiggy to Replace Sophia Shape

NEW YORK (AP) -- The shape of feminine things to come looks more like Twiggy than Sophia Loren, says Marshall McLuhan, the Canadian professor whose theories on communications have assumed the status of prophecy on Madison Avenue.

"Forms of womanhood like Sophia Loren have had it," McLuhan said at his first recording date.

McLuhan, 55, a professor at Toronto University, is the author of the best-selling book "The Medium is the Message" which contends it is more how you say it than what you say that counts in the electronic age.

Broadcasting Herbicides Result of Labor Shortage

By John D. Garrett
Extens on Area Soils Agent

PORTAGEVILLE - Because of labor shortage, many farmers have gone to complete weed control by broadcasting their herbicides before planting. In general, this means the total amount of nitrogen used on corn is applied preplant or at planting.

Even though the trend is toward more nitrogen being applied preplant, the bulk is still sidedressed. Either method of application - preplant or sidedressing - has advantages. Personal preferences, available equipment, convenience, soil conditions and cost per pound of nitrogen are the determining factors.

Since preplant time has already passed and you didn't apply nitrogen, then you have already lost the advantages you may have gained by early application. However, corn response to nitrogen applied as a sidedressing is usually comparable to or superior to preplant N.

Remember, an adequate supply of nutrients is essential. A shortage of nitrogen will limit the uptake of phosphorous and potassium by the crop. A poor lime situation will reduce the efficiency of all nutrients.

Nitrogen is the yield regulator, provided mineral fertility is adequate. Research has shown that from 120 to 160 total pounds per acre of actual nitrogen are required annually for top production. If corn is irrigated, the higher rate should be used. Usually 120 to 130 lbs. are sufficient without irrigation. In order to get top yields from applied nitrogen, the final stalk population should be around 18,000 plants per acre. This will change as new hybrids and technology are developed.

ADVANTAGES OF SIDEDRESSING

You can apply nitrogen in years when you need it and omit it in other years. For example, you may have a very poor stand or large drowned or frozen out areas, you can save the nitrogen you planned to sidedress. Last year, 1966, was a situation like this. But if you have an usually good stand and plenty of moisture available to produce top yields, you can sidedress at an extra high rate. Sidedressing gets the nitrogen on after the weeds are controlled, so you fertilize corn, not weeds. Finally, there's less time for nitrogen to leach from sandy soils or break down by denitrification in poorly drained soils.

TIME OF APPLICATION

Nitrogen can be sidedressed any time after you get a stand until the corn is too tall to get equipment through. Generally, the earlier corn is sidedressed the better you are. If possible, sidedressing should be completed before the corn roots are developed to where they may be pruned.

Roots develop rapidly under favorable conditions. The roots are usually as long as the plant is tall, and some are near the surface. To avoid root damage much as possible, sidedress in the middles of the row. You'll gain nothing by closer placement to the row, since corn roots meet across the row by the time the crop is knee-high.

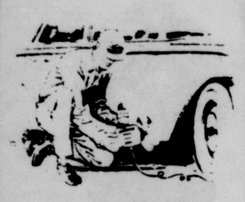

SOURCE OF NITROGEN

All of the common nitrogen fertilizers are acceptable for sidedressing, but anhydrous ammonia, ammonium nitrate, nitrogen solutions, and urea are the most popular sources in our area. Each one of these sources contain different percent nitrogen.

These are as follows: anhydrous ammonia 82 percent, ammonium nitrate 33.5 percent; nitrogen solutions 28 to 32 percent, and urea 45 percent. Research on these sources of nitrogen has been conducted in many areas and there has been no difference due to source when equivalent rates, time and method of application are used. Regardless of the source used, it should be applied under the soil surface. Nitrogen moves into corn roots along with water. It is preferable to sidedress dry and liquid non-pressure forms one to two inches deep.

Anhydrous ammonia should be applied five to six inches or deeper. When applying ammonia, be sure the soil is loose enough to get a good seal. The slit should be properly covered with plenty of loose soil by use of paddles, disks, chains, or other suitable device. Anhydrous is an excellent source of nitrogen but it must be handled properly for best results.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

Herman Roth, one of 33 designer craftsmen in silver in this country, spent 36 years in the U.S. Post Office Department before devoting full time to his art. He had always been interested in silver smithing as a hobby. Upon retirement in 1956 he found he not only had a fine reputation but a business as well. His interest in Judaic (his own faith) and Christian art led to his designing and making religious pieces in silver.

Today at an age when most men are willing to relax, Mr. Roth is more active than ever. Fifty per cent of his output consists of religious pieces—chalices, Hanukkah lamps, etc. "It is the most rewarding work I've done," he says. He is expressing his faith in his craft so that others may express theirs. He has turned down high salaried, permanent positions with large silver houses so that he could continue his personal commitment to churches and synagogues. A great deal of his time is spent lecturing and teaching throughout the country to preserve and continue the craft that expresses his faith.

When asked about his own faith, he said, "There has always been someone looking out for me. If it had been left up to me I'd have made a mess of it."

Carr Cited for LP Promotion

The "Flames of Salvation" exhibit which paraded through the streets of Sikeston last year has brought national recognition to its originator.

John E. Carr, Jr., 902 Hawthorne, president of the National Gas Company of Missouri, received an honorable mention in the third annual "Sales Builder of the Year" competition sponsored by Butane -- Propane News, trade publication covering the liquefied petroleum gas industry.

Last summer Carr, to call attention to the growing use of LP-gas for crop flaming in this area, gathered together 33 flame cultivators pulled by tractors. With pilot lights flaring, the contigent toured the streets of Sikeston.

Announcement of the award was made by editor William W. Clark at the recent 11th annual Butane - Propane News roundtable at Chicago prior to the National Liquefied Petion.

Butane - Propane News annually honors members of the LP - gas industry who have recorded outstanding sales promotion of marketing accomplishments. Four "Sales Builder of the Year" awards were presented this year, along with 10 honorable mentions.

NO IMMUNITY

I never feared Cupid's dart..
Believe myself immune...
But when I aimed straight at my heart,
I quickly changed my tune.
That little fellow's dart is sharp,
He does not fool around one bit.
His arrow sings much like a harp;
So does my heart...I must admit.

Milton Caniff (right), creator of the "Steve Canyon" adventure strip, and pert Linda Whatmore, model for the cute new character in the strip, pilot "Bitsy Beekman", guest on the "Mike Douglas Show" May 19, Cape Girardeau, Channel 12 at 3:30 p.m.

Milton Caniff, whose adventure strip, "Steve Canyon" is a regular feature of The Daily Standard will will be a guest with Mike Douglas on the nationally syndicated "Mike Douglas Show" and will introduce Linda Whatmore, the young New York model who is the original of "Bitsy Beekman", the pert fictional female pilot figuring in the strip's current sequence, May 19, Cape Girardeau Channel 12 at 3:30 p.m.

On the color TV show, Caniff explains what goes into the creation of a comic strip personality like "Bitsy" and, using his sketching pad before the TV cameras, attempts to originate a villainous character on the air. Actor Robert Taylor is co-host of the show and actress Agnes Moorehead is also a guest. During the interview, Caniff discloses which of all the characters he has created is his favorite and talks about the reception "Steve Canyon" has received in Russia.

On the week-end of April 19-May 1, Caniff and Linda will fly to Texas to participate in several celebrations. With a young model from Houston, Ann Meyer, representing "Poteet" Canyon, Colonel Steve Canyon's pretty ward, and Miss Whatmore as "Bitsy", Caniff will attend the closing ceremonies of the annual Strawberry Festival in Poteet, the Texas town which his adventure strip character has made famous. The trio also will appear at festivities marking the Fiftieth Anniversary of Kelly A. F. Field which started as a training base for Air Force pilots -- Colonel Canyon is an alumnus -- and at a Brunch given by the Texas State College chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, the national honorary journalistic sorority. At a dinner Saturday night, April 29th, in San Antonio, Caniff, probably the most honored of all cartoonists, will receive another award, a medal presented by the Order of Dedalians, an organization of U.S. Air Force pilots of World War I and II.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: My dear husband was only too happy to show me your column this morning--the one in which you said a wife should not expect her husband to get up at night with small children. Why don't you retire and turn your column over to someone whose mind has not been so badly damaged by age -- someone who can at least remember what life was like when her children were babies.

You said a man needs a full night's sleep so he can put in a day's work, and a mother can nap if she must. Did you say NAP?!!! You must be kidding. If I nap will YOU come over and do my laundry and cleaning and mending and baking and cooking?

My 11-month-old is already walking. She goes for the wall plugs, eats paper and climbs furniture like a monkey. My two-year-old is as fast as a streak of lightning. If I let her out of my sight for one minute, our home would have to be declared a disaster area.

Bedtime for me is 11:30 and then I can look forward to getting up at least twice during the night with the baby who is teething or the other one who wants a bottle. And my husband should not be bothered, you say. I just about had him seeing things my way when YOU came along with this lousy column. Thanks for nothing. --- READY TO DROP

Dear Ready: I still say you can nap if you want to. Or would you rather be a martyr? Maybe you can't sleep, but just getting off your feet for an hour or so will give you added energy. Try it and leave your husband alone.

Dear Ann Landers: For the past 10 years I've been a secretary to a successful and attractive business man who has a reputation for entertaining women other than his wife. The office gossip has it that our boss is involved in an affair with a woman who is employed here. She is unmarried, good looking and well liked.

The boss goes on frequent business trips. Recently, he and this woman have been absent from the office at the same time. The best guessers say they are together.

This is not my business and I don't wish to make it mine. But now the boss's wife has begun telephoning during the boss's absence -- pumping me for information. She'll ask, "Is Miss Soandso in today?" Or, "I would like Miss Soandso to call me. Please see that she gets the message."

I've tried to be evasive but today she nailed me by saying, "I'll hold the phone while you go see if Miss Soandso is in." When I told her I couldn't leave my desk because I was expecting some important calls, she was furious.

My husband says as a loyal employee I must tell the boss about her inquiries. I hate being in the middle. How shall I deal with the wife? Should I tell my boss? Please advise me. ---FRACTIONATED

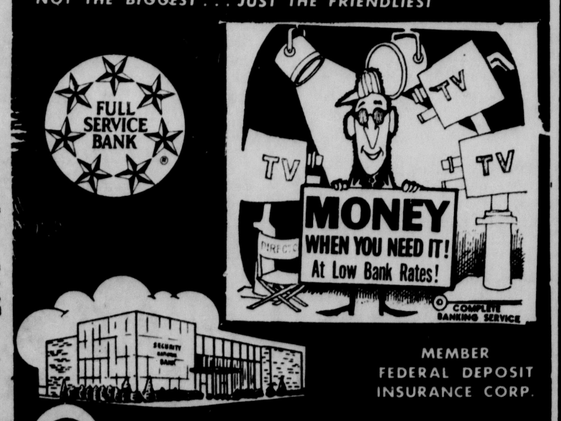

Dear Frac: You are under no obligation to serve as a private eye for either the boss or his wife. If you are wise you'll have no part of such action.

Tell the boss's wife if she wishes to speak with Miss Soandso to call her direct. Surely Miss Soandso has a telephone at her desk. As for the boss, report nothing.

Hoffman, inventor of various types of novelty furniture and children's scooters and toys of Chicago, Ill., was in Sikeston Tuesday making investigation concerning the possibility of locating a furniture and novelty factory here that would employ approximately 400 people. He explained that the company he represented had recently put in a factory of this type at Hermann and that quite a bit of the labor in such a plant can be done by men who are too old for employment in many occupations.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L. L. D.

THE CASE OF THE WELL BEGATTEN MOTHER

Numerically, the odds were against Carol. While she had five children with four different fathers, she didn't have even one husband. As a result, despite the fact that she worked very hard at being a mother, she needed help. As a temporary measure, she permitted one of her children to remain with her good friend Mr. Arnold. As it turned out, however, Mr. Arnold's first name could have been Benedict for after three years, he went to court and sought legal custody of the child.

"An unmarried woman who has four out of five children with different men," he told the judge, "obviously, isn't a fit mother. While others sew, she reaps."

"I am so a fit mother" declared Carol. "Not only do I love my children, but I work hard and support them all. While I may not have a husband, you can't have everything."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Mr. Arnold to have custody of Carol's child?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that to grant custody to a non parent, it must be proved that a natural parent is unfit. In this case, the judge noted, there has been no such proof. While Mr. Arnold's argument is not without force, having 4 out of 5 children by different men does not, as a matter of law, establish a mother as being unfit. Considering all the facts, he concluded, it is in the best interest of the child that the child's custody remain with the mother.

(Based upon a 1965 U. S. Dist. Ct. of Appeals Decision)

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

A landlord who has the duty to keep premises in repair cannot, generally, be held responsible for injuries resulting from a defective condition unless he fails to make repairs within a reasonable time after notice of such defects. Consequently, if a tenant observes a condition that should be fixed, such as a cracking ceiling, a broken or leaking pipe, etc., he should report it to his landlord in writing immediately.

Editor Blanton:

It has been our opinion that the climate for Right to Work in Missouri is definitely improving. This past weekend in Jefferson City we were given further proof that the issue is high in the minds of the thinking people.

This was the Twelfth Annual Session of the Missouri Intercollegiate State Legislature. Students from most of the Colleges in the state participated. The sessions are patterned after the regular legislature. Bills are introduced, committees hold hearings and the bills are debated on the floor. The sessions are held in the regular House and Senate Chambers to give an air of authenticity to the proceedings.

Eighty-two bills were introduced and processed during the two day session. It was significant to note that the Right to Work Bill was considered one of the more important bills. The debate and the vote were more bi-partisan than expected. It was the only bill on which the House suspended their rules to permit further debate. It passed in the House by a vote of 81 to 63 and in the Senate 24 to 12.

Here were several hundred clean, alert, serious, articulate young Americans. No beards, no un-cut heads of hair, no protests, no drugs, no profanity, and UNFORTUNATELY no headlines in the newspapers.

Gene Mittelberg, Executive Secretary of Missourians for Right to Work said the action taken by this student assembly could well reflect the attitude of Public Opinion in Missouri on Right to Work.

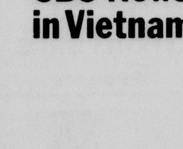

He went on to say "We saw our future leaders in action. We heard them speak. Their stand in favor of the Right to Work issue, and against Compulsory Unionism, was most encouraging to our organization."

Found Guilty Of Counterfeit Pill Charge

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- A jury of 10 men and two women in Federal District Court Monday found Carl F. McCubbin, 49, of Horse Cave, Ky., guilty on five counts of an indictment charging him with passing counterfeit amphetamine tablets to an undercover government agent.

Sentencing was set for Wednesday, May 17, by Judge Roy W. Harper.

The government's case was handled by Irvin Ruzicka of the district attorney's office.

He put two witnesses on the stand -- Harold Leap, the undercover agent who testified he purchased 100,000 of such tablets from the defendant -- and George E. Walper, senior analyst for Smith, Cline and French Laboratories.

Walper, on the witness stand, said he had analyzed the tablets purchased by Leap from the defendant and that they gave the appearance of Dexedrine, an amphetamine derivative.

Leap told of making arrangements to meet McCubbin in Cape Girardeau on Dec. 27, 1966.

He related events of the meeting and of the purchase of the 100,000 tablets which were in four different types of counterfeit drugs in quantities of 25,000 each.

He said the tablets gave the appearance of Dexedrine and amphetamine pills even to the shape and color, but an analysis showed they were caffeine instead.

Leap said the defendant referred to the tablets as "good stuff," which in the illiegal drug traffic means amphetamine, sometimes referred to as "bennies."

He said he was to pay the defendant $15 per thousand for the pills or $1,500.

Robert Schneider of Horse Cave, attorney for the defendant, put three witnesses on the stand - the defendant; his brother, Charles McCubbin, and Glenn Garrison, mayor of Horse Cave.

The defense sought to establish that no intent to defraud was intended, that McCubbin sold caffeine pills merely as a way of making a living and that the labels on the bottles were removed so that the address of the company from which McCubbin purchased the pills would not be available to "just anyone."

McCubbin said from the witness stand that he was only protecting his business interests when he removed the labels. He stated the government agent was aware of what he was purchasing - caffeine tablets -- and he was not attempting to pass them off as "good stuff."

Caffeine tablets have the same effect on the consumer as drinking a cup of coffee would have, only you don't have to stop to drink the coffee, McCubbin told the court.

His brother stated he had been with the defendant the night of the arrest and reiterated statements made by the defendant.

Mayor Garrison testified to the character of the defendant, saying he had known him many years and that McCubbin was of good reputation in Horse Cave. He added it was of somewhat general knowledge that the defendant sold caffeine tablets.

Tuesday a jury was selected to open a consolidated civil case for personal injuries to be heard in court today. The suit involves Mary A. Glover vs. Rhodes Oil Corp., and Dwight Clifton Rhodes, administrator, vs. Mary Apperson Glover.

The first plaintiff is asking $50,000 judgment for personal injuries. The second plaintiff is asking judgment for injuries and a death from a motor vehicle accident.

excavated the rock-choked passage, thinking perhaps the boys were caught in the fall. They apparently were not.

Civil Defense workers, cave rescue teams from Missouri and Illinois as well as Washington, D. C., and the Missouri National Guard joined in the search for the boys.

The Hoag brothers and the Dowell boy were last seen about 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, carrying a shovel and a flashlight, as they entered a cave recently uncovered by construction workers carving out a bed for a new highway.

Individuals and teams of experienced cave explorers spent all Wednesday night and Thursday squirming through narrow passages underlying the area, but found no trace of the boys.

Police dogs were brought in but were unable to work in the narrow confines.

Bob Harrison, commander of the Mark Twain Emergency Squad, said there was a slide in a cave passage about 20 feet to the right of the entrance that blocked rescue teams from entering a section of the cave running along the face of the bluff.

Mayor Harry Musgrove asked for a National Guard company to begin a search at dawn in an area east of the cave. Musgrove acted in response to a request from the Hoag family, which has been unanimous in feeling that the boys are not in Murphy's Cave, but perhaps in other caves uncovered by construction work.

About 400 yards to the east two new cave entrances were opened by earth moving equipment, one was filled in, but the other is open.

The Hoags-mother, father, seven brothers and four sisters — were unwilling to stand-by while others search for the boy and organized their own search party. They combed the hills Thursday night.

been speculation the Soviet destroyers made passes at the Walker because of cooling relations between the two powers over Vietnam.

American diplomats hoped the Soviets would order their warship skippers to keep a safe distance from American craft and end the incidents.

American authorities don't really expect this will be the last of such clashes. The history of the cold war is pocked with charges and countercharges of aircraft buzzings, gunfire, collisions and similar actions.

Although officials would not discuss rules of engagement, it was understood that U.S. Navy ship captains are under instructions to keep their courses and to show firmness in the face of harassment by Soviet vessels.

However, defense officials acknowledged there have been occasions when American commanders have had to give way to avoid collisions.

There is a disposition in some official quarters to view the bumping of the Walker as the unintended result of deliberately close passes by the Soviets.

The United States reported no casualties. Damage was described by the Pentagon as slight in both collisions.

A Navy spokesman said the Walker took a 6-inch hole, 10 feet above her waterline Thursday. The Wednesday bump reportedly resulted in a broken antenna.

Navy sources said the Soviet and American vessels were steaming very slowly.

The Soviet broadcast did not say anything about damage or casualties.

Some Pentagon authorities suggested the Soviets might have been trying to impress on the Americans that the Soviets regard the waters off Siberia as their sphere.

This was borne out to some extent by Moscow Radio's reference to American and Japanese warships holding joint exercises "near the coasts of the U.S.S.R."

According to data provided by the Pentagon, the Wednesday incident occurred about 270 miles due east of the Soviet port and naval base of Vladivostok and about 100 miles from the nearest Soviet land. The Thursday collision was pinpointed at about 210 miles southeast of Vladivostok.

Thus, both clashes were well outside the three-mile limit recognized by the United States as territorial waters.

Four Injured In Accident

MOREHOUSE - Four persons were injured in a two-vehicle accident at the intersection of U. S. 60 and Route E, a quarter of a mile south of here at 10 a.m. today.

The highway patrol said a pickup truck driven by Hurley Laster, 57, Sikeston, pulled onto U. S. 60 from Route E and into the path of a car driven by Cova Whobrey, 48, Middleton, Ky.

Injured were Mrs. Whobrey, cut lip and possible fractured ribs; Nelly Whobrey, 37, Livermore, Ky., skull fracture and fractured ribs; Leslie Whobrey, Livermore, facial cuts, and Arvil Nickell, 53, Sikeston, a passenger in the pickup truck, possible broken finger.

Laster was charged with careless and imprudent driving, failure to yield right of way.

Election Set for Gas Franchise

The city council in a special session Thursday evening passed an ordinance to grant a 10-year franchise with two five - year options to Associated Natural Gas Company. The ordinance is subject to approval of a majority of the qualified voters.

A special election to approve the ordinance, which in effect renews the company's franchise, was set for June 13.

The company's 20-year franchise expires in October, city clerk John Vaughn said.

The ordinance grants the natural gas company the same rights, privileges and restrictions it has had for the past 20 years. But the period of the franchise is shortened.

The ordinance grants the company a 10 - year franchise with a provision that it renews for a five - year period automatically, unless the city gives the company notice to the contrary six months prior to expiration, city attorney Manuel Drumm said.

Two five - year options are included in the ordinance. The ordinance provide that 5 per cent of the income from residential service will be paid the city as franchise tax payment. The payments are made on a monthly basis.

In other action, the council accepted an application for a 5 per cent liquor license filed by Mrs. Janet Spitler to operate an establishment at 136 Front. The premises will be inspected by Police Chief Arthur Bruce and Mayor Kendall Sikes before the license is granted, acting mayor Harry Dudley said.

Toll Bridge Attendant Murdered

CHESTER, Ill. -- A toll collector at the Chester bridge was murdered in a holdup last night.

Police said Joseph Gagnepain, 55, died shortly after 1 a.m. today after sustaining a gunshot wound in the head between 10:55 p.m. and 11:05 p.m. Thursday night.

Gagnepain, who had been working at the bridge for two years, had just begun his shift when the apparent holdup and murder occurred, police said.

The murder weapon was believed to have been a .38 caliber weapon.

Taken in the holdup was between $40 and $60 in change. Money bags in a drawer were not taken.

The police reported that at 10:55 p.m. last night a bus went through the toll gate and signed a charge ticket. At 11:05 p.m. a truck driver found Gagnepain lying on the floor but alive. He never regained consciousness.

Another truck driver stated that he went through the toll gate about 11 p.m. and saw another man in the office with Gagnepain.

At 1:50 a.m. today Cairo, Ill., authorities made an arrest of a suspect who had in his possession $11.85 in change. He is being held by authorites for investigation.

Rockefeller and Hearnes Plan Toll Road Talks

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - Gov. Warren E. Hearnes will meet with Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller at Little Rock May 22 to discuss plans to join the toll road efforts of Missouri and Arkansas.

Earlier this week Rockefeller met with Gov. John McKeithen of Louisiana to coordinate their efforts for toll turnpikes. One of routes being discussed would join Kansas City and New Orleans.

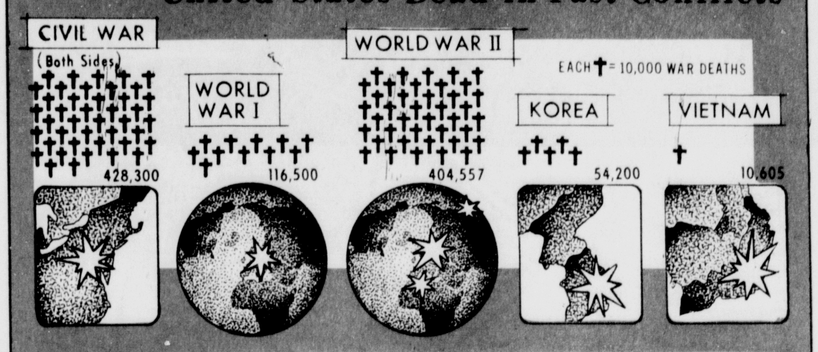

Hearnes has said a toll road south from Kansas City will have top priority in feasibility studies under a turnpike bill passed by the legislature last week.

In a news conference Thursday Hearnes said he also had been conferring with Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois about the possibility of a bi-state compact on air pollution but had learned little new information.

He declined to speculate about the Senate Appropriations Committee's action in whacking about $25 million from his budget recommendations.

"Until the Senate committee report is debated on the floor and the conference committee meets," he said, "it isn't clear what will come out."

Vietnam Casualties

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON -- American fighting men in Vietnam are now waging the fifth bloodiest war in U.S. history -- a history marked by nine wars since the battle for independence began in 1775.

Official Defense Department statistics list World War II as the most costly of the U.S. encounters, with the others, in order: The Civil War, World War I, Korea, Vietnam, War for Independence, War of 1812 and the Mexican War.

The toll has been heavy: over 1 million Americans have been killed and over 1.3 million wounded in connection with battlefield operations.

Through April 1, 1967, in Vietnam, 8,754 Americans have been killed in action, 1,851 GIs have died from noncombat causes and 51,601 men have been listed as wounded. Current total U.S. armed services' strength is about 3.5 million.

Some idea of the fierceness of World War II -- the world's biggest -- can be gleaned from this comparison: the total American fighting force of 16.1 million in World War II was less than five times bigger than the current military strength, yet the number of American battlefield deaths then -- 291,557 -- was about 34 times greater than the number U.S. victims in the Vietnam War so far.

In addition, the United States lost 113,000 men from noncombat-related deaths and had more than 670,000 men wounded.

Besides being the biggest, World War II also was the first war in which the number of men killed in action exceeded the number dying from other causes -- usually diseases.

In World War I, the third largest war in the U.S. history, 53,400 Americans were killed in action and 63,100 died from other reasons. Some 200,000 men were wounded of the total 4.7 million Americans in uniform.

The Korean War, more similar than any other to the Vietnamese struggle, saw the World War II trend continue: about 33,600 Americans died in action; another 20,600 died from other causes and 103,300 men were wounded.

Thus far in the Vietnam war, the number of American noncombat deaths is 1,851, compared to the 8,754 who had been killed in action as of April 1 or died while captured or in battlefield-connected accidents.

The most difficult war to assess statistically is the War between the North and South. The Pentagon only keeps official records of Union losses, which amount fo 264,500 dead and 282,000 wounded during the four-year struggle that began in 1861.

Unofficial Confederate statistics list about 133,800 Dixie deaths in connection with the war, not counting an estimated 30,000 who died in Northern prisons. No estimates of Southern wounded were available and estimates of the total number serving in the Army of the South ranged from 600,000 to 1.5 million. About 2.2 million men were in the Northern ranks.

Despite the statistical vagueness, the Pentagon lists the Civil War as the second bloodiest struggle in U.S. history.

America's first three wars - The Revolutionary War from 1775 to 1783; the War of 1812 that lasted through 1815; and the Mexican War, 1846-1848, cost less than 9,000 lives in all.

It is estimated that around 200,000 men were under arms at the time of the Revolutionary War. That struggle for freedom took 4,400 American lives and left 6,200 men wounded.

The U.S. military force grew to 286,000 by 1812. Despite that increase, the battle with the British left fewer scars. About 2,250 Americans were killed and 4,500 were wounded during the three-year war.

By the time of the Mexican War, the military machine had shrunk to 78,000 men. The war took 1,700 American lives and wounded 4,150.

America's least costly war was the short-lived Spanish American Battle in 1898. Although 306,000 Americans were under arms at the time, only 385 U.S. lives were lost in battle. Another 2,060 men died from other causes, about 400 more than suffered wounds.

The number of men dying from fever, disease and other causes in America's earlier wars is not known because no accurate records were kept.

College Survey Made

Questionnaires designed to measure student interest in a community college have been delivered to 17 Southeast Missouri high schools, Robert Mitchell, chairman of the community college study committee, said today.

Twenty-two questions on the forms aim to find if students in Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid and Stoddard counties would attend a community college if one were available.

The proposed college would offer both terminal vocational education courses and standard college courses. Emphasis would be on the vocational courses, Mitchell said.

The two - year college would not be in competition with Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau, Mitchell continued. It would provide standard college courses along with vocational courses, so if a student decided to work for a bachelor's degree later, some of the courses would transfer.

Questions on the forms will be answered by about 3,000 seniors and sophomores in the following schools: New Madrid, Charleston, East Prairie, Parma, Lilbourn, Matthews, Morehouse, Richland, Bell City, Advance, Dexter, Bloomfield, Chaffee, Oran, Benton, R-4, Morley R-5 and Sikeston R-6.

The total valuation of the 17 school districts according to the 1965-66 assessment is about $129,000,000, Mitchell reported.

The forms were prepared by the study committee in co-operation with the state department of education and Don Littrell, Portageville, area community development agent of the University of Missouri Extension Division.

The students' answers will be tabulated by June 15, and will be used as a vital part of the feasibility study being conducted.

Other factors being studied include: cost of buildings, cost of operations, probable enrollment, assessed valuation of area to be included and curriculum. Other community colleges and junior colleges are being contacted for pertinent information, Mitchell said.

The results of the feasibility study, including the tabulation of information on the questiontionnaires, will be presented in August to the area key persons committee for the establishment of a community college.

If the results show enough interest in a community college to merit further action, the key persons committee will prepare to petition for a vote on the issue.

To have a vote called, 5 per cent of the highest number of votes cast for a school board member in each district in the last election must sign a petition calling for a vote.

The petitions would then be submitted to the state department of education for approval to call an election and set the date of the election.

A location would not be chosen for the establishment of the college until after the issue would be approved and the trustees elected.

DAEOC Grants Phillips, Graves Another Hearing

PORTAGEVILLE -- The Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation board of directors will grant another hearing to Lloyd Phillips and William Graves at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the organization's headquarters, Robert Edwards, president of the six - county board, said today.

Edwards called Clyde Cahill, attorney for the Office of Economic Opportunity regional office in Kansas City, Thursday to find why another hearing should be held.

The DAEOC board voted 17-8 not to grant another hearing to the men when a directive from the Kansas City office calling for another hearing was presented at the Monday night meeting in Portageville.

Graves and Phillips were dismissed by the board following a hearing on March 26, Edwards said.

Cahill said the Kansas City office was mainly concerned that the board comply with OEO guidelines. The Kansas City office maintains that in the previous hearing Phillips and Graves were not given sufficient notice to prepare for the hearing. The office also said they were not provided with counsel.

Edwards said a bill of particulars stating which discrepencies the men are charged with will be presented to them today so they will have five days to prepare for the hearing.

"We hope they will have counsel to advise them at the hearing," Edwards said. They will be notified of their right to have counsel, he said.

The Kansas City office threatened to suspend the DAEOC board and channel the funds for the poverty programs through other delegate agencies, if the board did not grant another hearing and comply with OEO guidelines, Edwards said.

Cahill said the funding for the programs such as Head Start were not in jeopardy, but that other delegate agencies would be used in administering the programs if the board did not comply.

Members of the DAEOC board were notified of the new hearing Thursday.

The hearing will be closed to the public, but open to the press, Edwards said.

Ship Bumping Blame Disputed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The dispute over two collisions of U.S. and Soviet warships in the Sea of Japan was a standoff today. Each side accused the other of causing the bumps.

The United States charged the Soviet navy with harassing U.S. Navy vessels on the high seas. The Soviets charged the American Navy with provocations.

The United States claimed the U.S. destroyer Walker warned away the two Soviet destroyers that jostled her — one on Wednesday and the other Thursday — but that the warnings were spurned.

The Soviets claimed the skippers of their destroyers "drew the attention of the Americans to the impermissibility of getting dangerously close," but that the U.S. ships ignored this. American announcements have given no hint of any Soviet warnings.

The United States demanded that the Soviet Union take prompt steps to end the harassments.

The Soviets countered with a warning about "the kind of results" that could result from alleged provocations.

The State Department took its stand in public statements and formal protests to the Soviet Embassy. Moscow spoke through its state-run radio.

An aide said President Johnson considered the collisions a matter of concern.

U.S. defense officials said they see no link between the clashes in the Japan Sea and the war in Vietnam. There has

Highway Hiring Practices to Be Investigated

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - The Missouri House will investigate the hiring practices of the State Highway Department -covering alleged discrimination on racial, political and residential levels.

The House voted 105-27 Thursday in favor of a resolution by Rep. John Conley, D-St. Louis, to establish a five - member committee to conduct the probe.

Rep. Robert O. Snyder, R-Kirkwood, wanted it to cover politics because of recent charges that student applicants for summer jobs were being screened by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' patronage assistant.

Others said it was apparent there was a lack of confidence in the hiring procedures of the department and they should be investigated.

If the department has nothing to hide, they said, it should welcome the probe. And if there is something wrong it should be brought into the open.

The five - member committee is to report its findings to the House before midnight June 30.

Arson Trial Changed to Madrid Court

BENTON -- The trial of two Sikeston men charged with arson in connection with the Oct. 28, 1966 burning of a house and a barn near Oran, was postponed Thursday in circuit court.

The attorney for Mike DuBois and David Gilliland filed an application to disqualify Judge Marshall Craig from hearing the case and sought a change of venue. Both were granted.

The case will be transferred to New Madrid and Judge William Ragland will preside. The date has not been set, Scott county prosecuting attorney Fielding Potashnick said today.

The Sikeston men are known for their portrayal of Batman and Robin at a Sikeston teenage night spot.

The house that burned was the property of Bill and Joe Fisher. It was located about three miles north of Oran. The barn was the property of John Spooler and was located about two miles west of New Hamburg.

Gilliland is charged with arson in connection with both incidents. DuBois is charged with arson in connection with the house that burned. The charge of arson against DuBois in connection with the barn burning was dismissed following the preliminary hearing in magistrate court at Sikeston, Dec. 20.

Thompson Trial Set for May 17

BLOOMFIELD - The trial of Tommy Lee Thompson, 18, Sikeston, charged with burglary and stealing, is to be held Wednesday in circuit court.

Judge William Billings will hear the case, Scott County prosecuting attorney Fielding Potashnick said.

Thompson is charged in connection with the Feb. 17, 1965, burglary of the Daris Burgess residence, 842 Ruth in Sikeston.

Thompson was acquitted of a first degree murder charge Dec. 9, 1966, in circuit court at Jackson in connection with the Feb. 1, 1965, slaying of Mrs. W. R. Lewis, Sikeston.

Cave Explorers Find No Trace of Lost Boys

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) —Weary mud-grimed rescuers made their fifth and final sweep of Murphy's Cave today, hoping that somehow in nearly 40 hours of painstaking search they missed three boys believed lost in the cave.

No one appeared willing to call off the search for Joel (Joey) Hoag, 13; his brother, Billy 11, and a playmate, Edwin Craig Dowell, 14, also of Hannibal.

The disappearance of the boys recalled the writings of Hannibal's Mark Twain and the fictional adventures of Huck Finn and Tom Sawyer in these same caves around this Mississippi River town.

"We'll keep plugging if the authorities here want us to," said William Karras of Washington, D.C., head of the National Speleological Society's cave rescue team.

But Karras said he doesn't feel that the boys are in the cave. For two nights and one day spelunkers-cave explorers —from Missouri and Illinois crawled through winding narrow passages in search of the boys, retracing their steps again and again on the chance they have missed that one passage.

But there was no evidence— not even a button—to indicate that the boys ever entered the cave except for the word of two boys who saw them go in Wednesday.

"We don't know what else to do," sighed Karras. Bone-tired searchers standing in a loose circle around Karras nodded agreement.

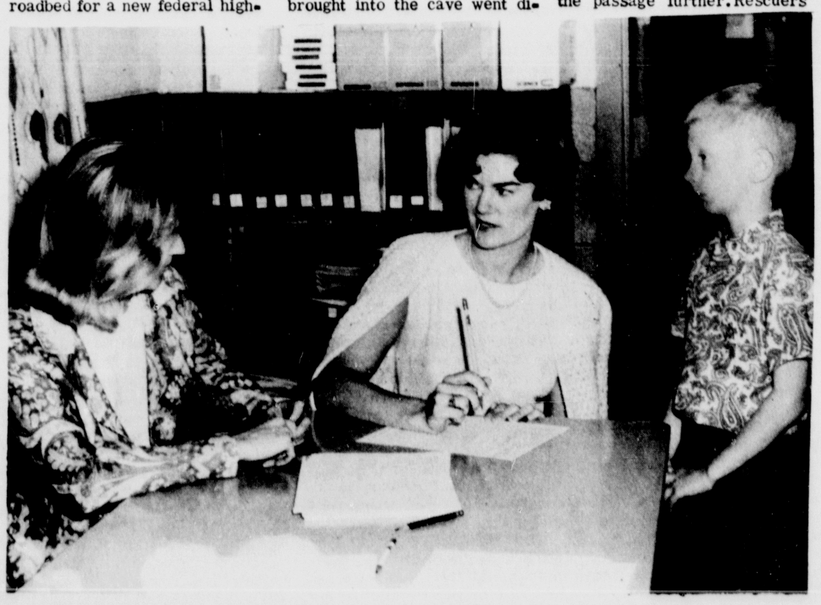

However, they collected their gear again for a last sweep through the cave and another check of two more caves 300 yards to the east. All three cave openings were exposed by a construction crew cutting a roadbed for a new federal highway through the south side of Hannibal.

The last real hope that the boys would be found in Murphy's Cave was a section of the northeast corner which was sealed off early in the search by a rock fall. Two police dogs brought into the cave went directly to the rock fall and scratched at its base.

The fall was about 20 feet to the right of the cave entrance, which is located about one-third of the way up a steep bluff sheared to a cliff by blasting crews. Still another fall choked the passage further. Rescuers dug from the outside of the bluff behind the rock fall and opened the passages beyond. They found nothing.

But just to be certain, they

Charleston Board Sets Auction of R-1 Property

CHARLESTON--The Charleston R-1 board of education set June 10 as the date for a public auction of certain school property, heard and approved a proposal to set up a non-graded curriculum for grades 1-3, and discussed the progress of federal aid programs in the school system.

The property to be auctioned by the board consists of a house on Danforth street and the properties will be sold to the highest bidder at the June 10 sale.

The new arrangement for the first three grades of the elementary school was explained to the board by William Sellers, assistant superintendent of elementary education here.

Sellers pointed out that, under the new arrangement, children will be grouped together and their progress through what, in the past, has been the first three grades will be based on scholastic accomplishments.

The major difference between the new system and the old, he added, will be the absence of grades as such.

Frank Hudson, supervisor of the federal aid programs here, explained to the board the progress which was being made in these areas.

In other business, the board hired Leonard LaBlanc, a former Charleston restaurant owner, as food service supervisor for the schools here.

Superman Is Reporter for Daily Standard

Would you believe that the Daily Standard has a reporter named Clark Kent on the staff? Well, would you believe Superman?

Thursday afternoon the newsroom received a telephone call from a Caruthersville newspaperman, who asked if he could speak to Clark Kent.

Thinking that the caller was putting him on, a Daily Standard reporter replied that no one by the name of Clark Kent was employed at the Standard. "Superman's here though, Do you want to talk to him? he asked.

The Caruthersville caller was awed by the reply and then said that he was checking out a job reference of a prospective employe who had used Clark Kent of the Daily Standard for a reference.

So if you see a man dressed in a blue costume with a red cape and an "S" embroidered on the chest flying over Sikeston, don't be alarmed. It's only a Daily Standard reporter covering a story for the paper.

Election Set for Gas Franchise

The city council in a special session Thursday evening passed an ordinance to grant a 10-year franchise with two five - year options to Associated Natural Gas Company. The ordinance is subject to approval of a majority of the qualified voters.

A special election to approve the ordinance, which in effect renews the company's franchise, was set for June 13.

The company's 20-year franchise expires in October, city clerk John Vaughn said.

The ordinance grants the natural gas company the same rights, privileges and restrictions it has had for the past 20 years. But the period of the franchise is shortened.

The ordinance grants the company a 10 - year franchise with a provision that it renews for a five - year period automatically, unless the city gives the company notice to the contrary six months prior to expiration, city attorney Manuel Drumm said.

Two five - year options are included in the ordinance. The ordinance provide that 5 per cent of the income from residential service will be paid the city as franchise tax payment. The payments are made on a monthly basis.

In other action, the council accepted an application for a 5 per cent liquor license filed by Mrs. Janet Spitler to operate an establishment at 136 Front. The premises will be inspected by Police Chief Arthur Bruce and Mayor Kendall Sikes before the license is granted, acting mayor Harry Dudley said.

Vietnam Casualties

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON -- American fighting men in Vietnam are now waging the fifth bloodiest war in U.S. history -- a history marked by nine wars since the battle for independence began in 1775.

Official Defense Department statistics list World War II as the most costly of the U.S. encounters, with the others, in order: The Civil War, World War I, Korea, Vietnam, War for Independence, War of 1812 and the Mexican War.

The toll has been heavy: over 1 million Americans have been killed and over 1.3 million wounded in connection with battlefield operations.

Through April 1, 1967, in Vietnam, 8,754 Americans have been killed in action, 1,851 GIs have died from noncombat causes and 51,601 men have been listed as wounded. Current total U.S. armed services' strength is about 3.5 million.

Some idea of the fierceness of World War II -- the world's biggest -- can be gleaned from this comparison: the total American fighting force of 16.1 million in World War II was less than five times bigger than the current military strength, yet the number of American battlefield deaths then -- 291,557 -- was about 34 times greater than the number U.S. victims in the Vietnam War so far.

In addition, the United States lost 113,000 men from noncombat-related deaths and had more than 670,000 men wounded.

Besides being the biggest, World War II also was the first war in which the number of men killed in action exceeded the number dying from other causes -- usually diseases.

In World War I, the third largest war in the U.S. history, 53,400 Americans were killed in action and 63,100 died from other reasons. Some 200,000 men were wounded of the total 4.7 million Americans in uniform.

The Korean War, more similar than any other to the Vietnamese struggle, saw the World War II trend continue: about 33,600 Americans died in action; another 20,600 died from other causes and 103,300 men were wounded.

Thus far in the Vietnam war, the number of American noncombat deaths is 1,851, compared to the 8,754 who had been killed in action as of April 1 or died while captured or in battlefield-connected accidents.

The most difficult war to assess statistically is the War between the North and South. The Pentagon only keeps official records of Union losses, which amount to 264,500 dead and 282,000 wounded during the four-year struggle that began in 1861.

Unofficial Confederate statistics list about 133,800 Dixie deaths in connection with the war, not counting an estimated 30,000 who died in Northern prisons. No estimates of Southern wounded were available and estimates of the total number serving in the Army of the South ranged from 600,000 to 1.5 million. About 2.2 million men were in the Northern ranks.

Despite the statistical vagueness, the Pentagon lists the Civil War as the second bloodiest struggle in U.S. history.

America's first three wars - The Revolutionary War from 1775 to 1783; the War of 1812 that lasted through 1815; and the Mexican War, 1846-1848, cost less than 9,000 lives in all.

It is estimated that around 200,000 men were under arms at the time of the Revolutionary War. That struggle for freedom took 4,400 American lives and left 6,200 men wounded.

The U.S. military force grew to 286,000 by 1812. Despite that increase, the battle with the British left fewer scars. About 2,250 Americans were killed and 4,500 were wounded during the three-year war.

By the time of the Mexican War, the military machine had shrunk to 78,000 men. The war took 1,700 American lives and wounded 4,150.

America's least costly war was the short-lived Spanish American Battle in 1898. Although 306,000 Americans were under arms at the time, only 385 U.S. lives were lost in battle. Another 2,060 men died from other causes, about 400 more than suffered wounds.

The number of men dying from fever, disease and other causes in America's earlier wars is not known because no accurate records were kept.

College Survey Made

Questionnaires designed to measure student interest in a community college have been delivered to 17 Southeast Missouri high schools, Robert Mitchell, chairman of the community college study committee, said today.

Twenty-two questions on the forms aim to find if students in Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid and Stoddard counties would attend a community college if one were available.

The proposed college would offer both terminal vocational education courses and standard college courses. Emphasis would be on the vocational courses, Mitchell said.

The two - year college would not be in competition with Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau, Mitchell continued. It would provide standard college courses along with vocational courses, so if a student decided to work for a bachelor's degree later, some of the courses would transfer.

Questions on the forms will be answered by about 3,000 seniors and sophomores in the following schools: New Madrid, Charleston, East Prairie, Parma, Lilbourn, Matthews, Morehouse, Richland, Bell City, Advance, Dexter, Bloomfield, Chaffee, Oran, Benton, R-4, Morley R-5 and Sikeston R-6.

The total valuation of the 17 school districts according to the 1965-66 assessment is about $129,000,000, Mitchell reported.

The forms were prepared by the study committee in co-operation with the state department of education and Don Littrell, Portageville, area community development agent of the University of Missouri Extension Division.

The students' answers will be tabulated by June 15, and will be used as a vital part of the feasibility study being conducted.

Other factors being studied include: cost of buildings, cost of operations, probable enrollment, assessed valuation of area to be included and curriculum. Other community colleges and junior colleges are being contacted for pertinent information, Mitchell said.

The results of the feasibility study, including the tabulation of information on the questiontionnaires, will be presented in August to the area key persons committee for the establishment of a community college.

If the results show enough interest in a community college to merit further action, the key persons committee will prepare to petition for a vote on the issue.

To have a vote called, 5 per cent of the highest number of votes cast for a school board member in each district in the last election must sign a petition calling for a vote.

The petitions would then be submitted to the state department of education for approval to call an election and set the date of the election.

A location would not be chosen for the establishment of the college until after the issue would be approved and the trustees elected.

DAEOC Grants Phillips, Graves Another Hearing

PORTAGEVILLE -- The Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation board of directors will grant another hearing to Lloyd Phillips and William Graves at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the organization's headquarters, Robert Edwards, president of the six - county board, said today.

Edwards called Clyde Cahill, attorney for the Office of Economic Opportunity regional office in Kansas City, Thursday to find why another hearing should be held.

The DAEOC board voted 17-8 not to grant another hearing to the men when a directive from the Kansas City office calling for another hearing was presented at the Monday night meeting in Portageville.

Graves and Phillips were dismissed by the board following a hearing on March 26, Edwards said.

Cahill said the Kansas City office was mainly concerned that the board comply with OEO guidelines. The Kansas City office maintains that in the previous hearing Phillips and Graves were not given sufficient notice to prepare for the hearing. The office also said they were not provided with counsel.

Edwards said a bill of particulars stating which discrepencies the men are charged with will be presented to them today so they will have five days to prepare for the hearing.

"We hope they will have counsel to advise them at the hearing," Edwards said. They will be notified of their right to have counsel, he said.

The Kansas City office threatened to suspend the DAEOC board and channel the funds for the poverty programs through other delegate agencies, if the board did not grant another hearing and comply with OEO guidelines, Edwards said.

Cahill said the funding for the programs such as Head Start were not in jeopardy, but that other delegate agencies would be used in administering the programs if the board did not comply.

Members of the DAEOC board were notified of the new hearing Thursday.

The hearing will be closed to the public, but open to the press, Edwards said.

Ship Bumping Blame Disputed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The dispute over two collisions of U.S. and Soviet warships in the Sea of Japan was a standoff today. Each side accused the other of causing the bumps.

The United States charged the Soviet navy with harassing U.S. Navy vessels on the high seas. The Soviets charged the American Navy with provocations.

The United States claimed the U.S. destroyer Walker warned away the two Soviet destroyers that jostled her — one on Wednesday and the other Thursday — but that the warnings were spurned.

The Soviets claimed the skippers of their destroyers "drew the attention of the Americans to the impermissibility of getting dangerously close," but that the U.S. ships ignored this. American announcements have given no hint of any Soviet warnings.

The United States demanded that the Soviet Union take prompt steps to end the harassments.

The Soviets countered with a warning about "the kind of results" that could result from alleged provocations.

The State Department took its stand in public statements and formal protests to the Soviet Embassy. Moscow spoke through its state-run radio.

An aide said President Johnson considered the collisions a matter of concern.

U.S. defense officials said they see no link between the clashes in the Japan Sea and the war in Vietnam. There has

Highway Hiring Practices to Be Investigated

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - The Missouri House will investigate the hiring practices of the State Highway Department -covering alleged discrimination on racial, political and residential levels.

The House voted 105-27 Thursday in favor of a resolution by Rep. John Conley, D-St. Louis, to establish a five - member committee to conduct the probe.

Rep. Robert O. Snyder, R-Kirkwood, wanted it to cover politics because of recent charges that student applicants for summer jobs were being screened by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' patronage assistant.

Others said it was apparent there was a lack of confidence in the hiring procedures of the department and they should be investigated.

If the department has nothing to hide, they said, it should welcome the probe. And if there is something wrong it should be brought into the open.

The five - member committee is to report its findings to the House before midnight June 30.

Arson Trial Changed to Madrid Court

BENTON -- The trial of two Sikeston men charged with arson in connection with the Oct. 28, 1966 burning of a house and a barn near Oran, was postponed Thursday in circuit court.

The attorney for Mike DuBois and David Gilliland filed an application to disqualify Judge Marshall Craig from hearing the case and sought a change of venue. Both were granted.

The case will be transferred to New Madrid and Judge William Ragland will preside. The date has not been set, Scott county prosecuting attorney Fielding Potashnick said today.

The Sikeston men are known for their portrayal of Batman and Robin at a Sikeston teenage night spot.

The house that burned was the property of Bill and Joe Fisher. It was located about three miles north of Oran. The barn was the property of John Spooler and was located about two miles west of New Hamburg.

Gilliland is charged with arson in connection with both incidents. DuBois is charged with arson in connection with the house that burned. The charge of arson against DuBois in connection with the barn burning was dismissed following the preliminary hearing in magistrate court at Sikeston, Dec. 20.

Thompson Trial Set for May 17

BLOOMFIELD - The trial of Tommy Lee Thompson, 18, Sikeston, charged with burglary and stealing, is to be held Wednesday in circuit court.

Judge William Billings will hear the case, Scott County prosecuting attorney Fielding Potashnick said.

Thompson is charged in connection with the Feb. 17, 1965, burglary of the Daris Burgess residence, 842 Ruth in Sikeston.

Thompson was acquitted of a first degree murder charge Dec. 9, 1966, in circuit court at Jackson in connection with the Feb. 1, 1965, slaying of Mrs. W. R. Lewis, Sikeston.

Cave Explorers Find No Trace of Lost Boys

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) —Weary mud-grimed rescuers made their fifth and final sweep of Murphy's Cave today, hoping that somehow in nearly 40 hours of painstaking search they missed three boys believed lost in the cave.

No one appeared willing to call off the search for Joel (Joey) Hoag, 13; his brother, Billy 11, and a playmate, Edwin Craig Dowell, 14, also of Hannibal.

The disappearance of the boys recalled the writings of Hannibal's Mark Twain and the fictional adventures of Huck Finn and Tom Sawyer in these same caves around this Mississippi River town.

"We'll keep plugging if the authorities here want us to," said William Karras of Washington, D.C., head of the National Speleological Society's cave rescue team.

But Karras said he doesn't feel that the boys are in the cave. For two nights and one day spelunkers-cave explorers —from Missouri and Illinois crawled through winding narrow passages in search of the boys, retracing their steps again and again on the chance they have missed that one passage.

But there was no evidence-not even a button—to indicate that the boys ever entered the cave except for the word of two boys who saw them go in Wednesday.

"We don't know what else to do," sighed Karras. Bone-tired searchers standing in a loose circle around Karras nodded agreement.

However, they collected their gear again for a last sweep through the cave and another check of two more caves 300 yards to the east. All three cave openings were exposed by a construction crew cutting a roadbed for a new federal highway through the south side of Hannibal.

The last real hope that the boys would be found in Murphy's Cave was a section of the northeast corner which was sealed off early in the search by a rock fall. Two police dogs brought into the cave went directly to the rock fall and scratched at its base.

The fall was about 20 feet to the right of the cave entrance, which is located about one-third of the way up a steep bluff sheared to a cliff by blasting crews. Still another fall choked the passage further. Rescuers dug from the outside of the bluff behind the rock fall and opened the passages beyond. They found nothing.

But just to be certain, they

Charleston Board Sets Auction of R-1 Property

CHARLESTON--The Charleston R-1 board of education set June 10 as the date for a public auction of certain school property, heard and approved a proposal to set up a non-graded curriculum for grades 1-3, and discussed the progress of federal aid programs in the school system.

The property to be auctioned by the board consists of a house on Danforth street and the properties will be sold to the highest bidder at the June 10 sale.

The new arrangement for the first three grades of the elementary school was explained to the board by William Sellers, assistant superintendent of elementary education here.

Sellers pointed out that, under the new arrangement, children will be grouped together and their progress through what, in the past, has been the first three grades will be based on scholastic accomplishments.

The major difference between the new system and the old, he added, will be the absence of grades as such.

Frank Hudson, supervisor of the federal aid programs here, explained to the board the progress which was being made in these areas.

In other business, the board hired Leonard LaBlanc, a former Charleston restaurant owner, as food service supervisor for the schools here.

Superman Is Reporter for Daily Standard

Would you believe that the Daily Standard has a reporter named Clark Kent on the staff? Well, would you believe Superman?

Thursday afternoon the newsroom received a telephone call from a Caruthersville newspaperman, who asked if he could speak to Clark Kent.

Thinking that the caller was putting him on, a Daily Standard reporter replied that no one by the name of Clark Kent was employed at the Standard. "Superman's here though, Do you want to talk to him? he asked.

The Caruthersville caller was awed by the reply and then said that he was checking out a job reference of a prospective employe who had used Clark Kent of the Daily Standard for a reference.

So if you see a man dressed in a blue costume with a red cape and an "S" embroidered on the chest flying over Sikeston, don't be alarmed. It's only a Daily Standard reporter covering a story for the paper.

NATIONAL TRANSPORTATION WEEK

National Transportation Week will be observed this year from May 14 through 20. It has great significance to the vitality and future of this sprawling nation.

Even if you've never tried to sell ice cubes to an Eskimo in the middle of the Arctic night, the role of transport in modern economic life is apparent. Things are not very valuable until you take them someplace where they are wanted. Under the impetus of need and the opportunity of free enterprise, America can boast the largest, most versatile and efficient transport systems in the world. The consumer is the beneficiary. Volume production and lowest possible prices depend on coast-to-coast marketing - and that we have with automobiles in California (a mixed blessing) and lettuce in Detroit at any time of the year.

During Transportation Week, it will be emphasized that as a nation our future will depend on wise, comprehensive development of all modes of transport - rail, highway, air and water. For common carriers, government regulation is a great factor for good or ill. And here the future and the public interest demand that close attention be given to the concept of maximum competitive freedom for all with legislative advantage for none.

ACCENT ON YOUTH

Sen. Charles H. Percy (R Ill.) speaks at the Berkeley campus of the University of California on Monday (May 15).

A more than expected accent on youth is developing this far in advance of the scramble for the 1968 nominations and elections. The Democratic National Committee recently sent 40 Democratic House members, most of them young men, to campuses all over the country. The emphasis was on classroom participation and informal discussion.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's charisma for youth is so well established as scarcely to be worth detailing. His brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (Mass.), shares his Pied Piperism.

Gov. George Romney (R) of Michigan, who is certainly the front-runner for the G.O.P. nomination for President in 1968 - he's been beating President Johnson in the opinion polls recently - is busily appealing to youth. He took pains in a visit to Atlanta May 1 to meet with students at Morehouse College, a predominantly Negro Baptist school, and Emory University, which is largely white. His reception at Emory was noticeably warmer than at Morehouse.

It was on the latter campus that Romney delivered his blunt: "I have been raised from childhood with the firm belief that the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States are divinely inspired documents and as a result I have fought in my private life and in my public life to eliminate social injustice and racial discrimination."

The latest among the 1968 eligibles to turn to youth is freshmen Sen. Charles H. Percy (R Ill.), as evidenced by his mid-May appearances on the campuses at Berkeley and Southern California. Percy is no longer a dark horse, but, say a chestnut or even a gray. He said he was not a candidate for 1968 at a news conference in Concord, N. H., on April 7 but refused to rule out a change of mind next year.

Chuck Percy looks younger than his 48 years. He is well scrubbed and has a kind of Ivy League look. He has a clear deep voice and a polished manner. He is most telegenic. The Wall Street Journal notes his "Kennedy-like image."

Some of Percy's ideas seem likely to appeal especially to youth. "We owe it to the men who must fight our wars to promote peace and peaceful contact in every way we can. If we must accelerate the war - as the administration believes we must - then let us accelerate the pursuit of peace."

Percy favors not only open housing. On April 20 he introduced a bill - with the co-sponsorship of all other Republican Senators - that would set up a Comsat-type of non-profit corporation to float bonds to fund private sponsors for building or repairing homes for low-income families. Other Percy ideas have a similar fresh appeal to youth.

Party surveys show that only 35 per cent of college students now regard themselves as Democrats - a remarkable falling off from the days of President John F. Kennedy. Republicans are being drawn, if they are not pushing, into the vacuum.

And the Democrats are beginning to take fearful notice. On April 25 the National Committee announced plans for a "resources panel" of young people to capture the loyalty or at least the attention of their fellows.

Perhaps you have asked yourself - "With the federal government spending so much money on medical research, why do voluntary health agencies concern themselves with research?"

One of the leading physicians at the National Institutes of Health said: "In its conservative fashion, the Government is more likely to follow than to lead. Our support of research, therefore, is very largely limited to specifically defined research projects."

Who then must do the leading? The voluntary health agencies.

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society is an example. During the past year, the Society gave funds to the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness of the U.S. Public Health Service in order to begin a study on multiple sclerosis that looks promising but for which the federal government had not budgeted. Thus precious time was saved because the voluntary agency could act quickly.

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society has budgeted $1,000,000 for research in 1967. It will continue to investigate all hopeful, direct approaches to uncover the reasons for MS and related diseases, and to find an effective treatment. Since 1946, approximately seven million dollars has been expended on medical and scientific research by the Society.

To continue to delve into the mystery of MS, your dollars are needed. The partnership between government and a voluntary agency to compliment and supplement one another is a truly American phenomenon. Another is that we help one another - so please give generously when the MS volunteer calls.

May very well reap just about what he sowed."

This message is contained in The Travelers Insurance Companies annual highway accident booklet, which reports 52,500 deaths and 4,400,000 injuries last year. Statistics in the booklet were compiled from reports by state motor vehicle departments.

Excessive speed is blamed for more than 41 percent of the highway deaths in 1966. It is the largest single factor in all fatal accidents resulting from driver error.

Other major factors involving actions of drivers resulting in deaths and injuries include driving on the wrong side of the road, reckless driving and not having the right-of-way.

Drivers in 1966 were blamed for more than 80 percent of all fatal accidents while pedestrians, or a combination of pedestrian and driver, were found at fault in the remaining 20 percent.

To help prevent accidents, a Travelers spokesman suggests that drivers update driving skills by taking a driver refresher course; practice 'defensive driving'; limit driving when tired; adjust speed to highway weather, traffic and other conditions; and don't drive under the influence of alcohol.

He also urged motorists to support better law enforcement, highway improvement, and improved driver licensing.

SWELL LEADS

John's conscience bothered him as he confided to a close friend:

"I have made love to many women. I'm going to my wife tonight and confess and beg her forgiveness."

So to his wife he confided his flames.

Naturally she was hurt and asked, "Was it Mrs. Green?"

"I won't tell you," came the reply.

"Was it Mrs. Brown?"

"Was it Mrs. Casey?"

"Well," retorted the now angered wife, "if you won't tell me who they are, I won't forgive you."

The next day John met his friend who asked:

"Listen John, did your wife forgive you?"

"No, Bill, she didn't, but she gave me some swell leads."

Many people get a regular dental and medical checkup, but never think of having their minds inspected. This is odd, because it is well known that one's mental outlook can materially affect one's physical welfare.

As the old saying goes, "It's all in the mind."

It isn't always necessary, however, to go to a headshrinker and have him paw through your ID and ego to find out whether you are well, well, well, or sick, sick, sick. In many cases you can do it yourself.

Here, for example, is a series of questions which can help you determine your sanity quotient:

When the alarm clock wakes you up on Monday morning, do you sometimes feel like just lying there in bed and crying until it is Tuesday?

Are you secretly convinced that half the people you meet nowadays don't know what they are talking about three-fourths of the time?

When a bank truck loaded with money goes by you in the street, do you idly wonder how you could rob it and get away with the loot?

If a pretty blonde at a cocktail party walks away from you to listen to somebody else, do you instantly decide that her neck is too scrawny or her legs are too big?

Have you bought at least one blue chip stock in the last 20 years that has gone down in value? If so, do you believe the guy you bought it from is either a fool or a fraud?

Can you lose your head when those around you are keeping theirs?

As the years roll by, are you finding it more and more difficult to get the tops off ketchup bottles?

Do you still prefer martinis to LSD or other forms of psychedelic drugs?

Are you finding it harder to sleep at night but easier to doze off while watching a television program on which prominent people discuss the so-called vital issues of the day?

Do you spend more time figuring how you'll be able to get by on your pension than you do thinking up ways you can get rich?

When someone tells you a new joke, does it remind you of two just like it you heard from your barber 15 years before?

Well, now let's look at your box score. If you answered "yes" to all the foregoing questions, put your mind at ease. You are normal as you need be, as sane as everyone else.

To put it bluntly, you're as sound as a nut.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- In a world plagued with hunger, the bureaucrats inside the agriculture department are battling to reduce this country's wheat acreage.

They argue that a wheat cutback will push up prices and bring contentment to the farms, that contented farmers are more likely to vote next year to keep the Democrats in power.

This is callous reasoning at a time when the nation needs every bushel of wheat the farmers can grow to fight famine in India and to keep up our own dwindling grain reserves. The national wheat backlog has dropped below a seventh-month supply, which is considered dangerously low.

The backstage debate over wheat acreage has become almost a family squabble between former Minnesotans. Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman, a onetime Minnesota governor, has been pushed by his advisers into a position favoring acreage cuts.

He is vigorously opposed by Vice President Hubert Humphrey, a former senator from Minnesota, who wants to boost wheat production. Supporting the Vice President is his former senate aide, Herb Waters, who now heads the war - on - hunger program.

Freeman has pointed out in private conversations that the farmers, troubled over falling wheat prices, planted less than half of the 30 per cent increase in wheat acreage they were granted for the past season.

LBJ, POPE AGREE

The solution is not to cut back acreage, Humphrey has responded, but to increase the incentive for farmers. He has urged President Johnson to ask congress for higher wheat subsidies.

The President, a populist at heart, is emotionally committed to the war against hunger. He was briefed on the program at a national security council meeting last year by David Bell, then foreign aid administrator, who described the hunger in the world and the need for American food.

When Bell finished, the President slapped the table.

"We need to grow more wheat!" he declared emphatically.

Note: Herb Waters discussed the world food problem in the Vatican the other day with Pope Paul, who has been critical of the Vietnam war. Waters told him the American aim was not only to help feed the hungry but to teach them how to grow more food to feed themselves. "We are allies in this war," Pope said with a smile, referring to the war on hunger as opposed to the Vietnam war.

PENTAGON PADDING

The Pentagon, contradicting a Hanoi claim that 88,000 Americans were killed in Vietnam during the first nine months of 1966, charged that the figures were considerably inflated.

But the totals put out by the defense department -- 3,558 Americans dead and 41,000 Communists killed -- are also padded. The truth is that almost all Vietnamese killed in action, if they aren't wearing South Vietnamese uniforms, are lumped together as enemy dead. On occasion, this has even included women and children.

One combat soldier, whose name charitably is omitted, wrote to this column about the practice in his division.

"The daily enemy -- killed-in-action figures," he charged, "can be trusted as much as a paper bag can ge trusted to store water. Everyone killed who is not in a friendly uniform is counted as an enemy KIA.

"On one mission, I saw two unarmed men scamper from under some rocks and attempt to run away. One was shot through the heart; the other had his leg nearly severed by a M-16 round.

"The former was listed as an enemy KIA. Maybe he was. Maybe he was a villager who hid from the enemy just as he tried to hide from us.

"On another mission, a woman killed by aerial rocket artillery, fired from fire-breathing choppers, was likewise listed as an enemy KIA."

SUPPRESSED REPORT?

The Senate Republican Policy Committee's controversial report on the Vietnam war is being suppressed by its chairman, Sen. Bourke Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, who has rejected several offers from private publishing houses to reprint the report.

While he has been grandly turning down all publishers, however, Public Affairs Press has rushed the report into print without bothering to ask permission. Editor M. B. Schnapper contends that the report, prepared at the taxpayers' expense, is a public document.

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES

Sen. Steve Young, D-Ohio, the spryest elder statesman in the senate, has just written a penetrating diagnosis of Central Intelligence for Playboy magazine. It's published this month among all the undraped females. The CIA, incidentally, no longer uses sexy gals as spies. . . . Rep. Fred Schwengel, R-Iowa, who has promoted a color booklet about the U. S. Capital, on sale to tourists for $1, isn't making any money from it. Proceeds go to the Capital Historical Society, which Schwengel heads. Some of Schwengel's colleagues have been critical over the sale of the book through Capitol Guides. . . A Louisville police court held an Episcopalian Priest, Rev. Charles Brandets Tachau, on $5,000 bond in the recent open - housing demonstrations, while holding three Nazi - American demonstrations from Chicago for only $2,000. Father Tachau has now been released; but Buford Posey, formerly of Mississippi and now employed in the Gambian Embassy in Washington, is still under bond. Posey says he was arrested in Louisville while watching the demonstrations after a TV reporter remarked that he had come from Philadelphia, Miss. According to Posey this was enough to prompt the Louisville police to arrest him.

SHAME OF THE CITIES

Millions of words are constantly being uttered and written about the problems of our nation's cities, but most of this flood of language ignores the greatest problem of all in connection with these metropolitan areas. That problem is the present Electoral College System of electing the President of the United States.

This system perpetuates the mid - city political machines, both Democratic and Republican, by controlling bloc groups dictating the nominations for President and thus deciding upon the candidates the electorate will have a chance to support. The more constructive voice of Americans living in suburban areas, small towns and the country is drowned out.

The Electoral College System needs to be reformed. The best reform would be the Congressional District Reform Plan, which goes under the nickname of CONDIRP. The plan is both effective and simple. It would provide for one presidential and vice-presidential elector from the state at large. They would be elected by the constituents of the members of Congress upon whom their tenure as electors is based.

CONDIRP would bring the election of our two top executives closer to the people. Every person's vote would count for as much in the outcome as any other person's vote. No longer would all of a state's electoral vote go to the candidate receiving more votes -- and it could be just one more vote -- than his closest runnerup. The people should call on Congress to submit the necessary constitutional amendment to the states before the public wonders astray or desist in despair. HLH.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

IN AND OUT OF THE CIA

Italy's Union Chief Askes U.S. Labor For $18 Million Annually to Fight Communists.

Washington, D. C. -- In "central intelligence" they operate on the theory that the price is always right if the "information" or operation is vital to survival of this nation and its interests.

How high is right? Judge for yourself. In Rome, an Italian labor leader once asked former Teamsters' leader, blue - eyed Dave Beck, for $18 million annually just to "compete" with what the Communist Party of Italy was throwing into union organizing work.

Even Dave Beck blanched to his bald pate. But he had asked a direct question. He got a direct answer from Giulio Pastore, then chief of the Confederation of Italian Labor Syndicates (CISL) and now Minister without portfolio in the Italian cabinet. (I vouch for this story.)

I was there when Beck asked Pastore how much it would take for an effective counteraction against the Communist apparatus. We were in Pastore's office. With us were Beck's son and two representatives of the AFL. That was in 1953. Characteristically, Beck raised a few dollars and contributed an automobile. But some one had to pay the bill to save Italy from first being crippled by Communist - led general strikes -- and then from seizure by paramilitary action squads in factories, transport and on the docks.

Some of the money came from American labor. The bulk came from the Central Ingelligence Agency. It was dollar for ruble. Why not?

The most never diminished.

As late as 1962, Walter Reuther urged the U.S. government to make $2 million available for a fight in Italy. His strategy called for uniting all the Italian metal workers (steel, auto, shipbuilding, construction, etc.) in one big union. This was to include the anti - Communists, the Socialists, and the Communists in a mass federation. The $2 million was approved. The AFL - CIO President George Meany fought it. He would not have any dealings with the Communist unions -- no united front. He called the late President Kennedy. The project was killed.

But other operations were not. They're under way right now in Latin America, Africa and Asia. Why not? Britain's MI-6, France's Deuzieme Bureau and other national intelligence services manipulated similar fronts. The U. S. would be out in the cold if the CIA to kill its "labor unit."

But to know why the national AFL-CIO leaders such as George Meany are agitated by the reports of CIA funding, the public should know that the labor leaders were there long before the CIA was a gleam in Harry Truman's eye.

When the Nazis began gas-chambering labor leaders, the garment workers' Davis Dubinsky went to Franklin Roosevelt and got 300 visas for their entry into the U. S. The pepper, needle trades' chief knew that some day, after the war was over, labor men would be needed to rebuild a free and anti-Communist movement.

The money then came from his ladies garment workers and the AFL. Later he and Jay Lovestone, a most unmysterious cloakless chap -- who worked with the Catholic underground as well as with those in the CIA who sought information -- and the late AFL first vice - president Matthew Woll launched the Free Trade Union Committee. They spent millions. But it was all labor money.

They worked closely with the labor desk of the Office of Strategic Services (OSS). Its chief was a Chicago labor lawyer, by name of Arthur Goldberg. By 1944 they were swinging. The CIA did not get into action until 1948. Then it had to pull together all the remnants of the old wartime OSS. By that time the AFL not only had Jay Lovestone and Irving Brown (a sort of Scarlet Pimpernel who knew every Communist cell and every great restaurant in Europe), but also Henry Rutz, a chap who did a skilled job in educating British and U. S. Army occupation officers. Rutz taught them the difference between Communists, pro - Communist Socialists, anti - Communist Socialists and Social Democrats.

This not - very - Ian Flemingish trio helped save West Berlin, Germany, France, Italy and Finland, too. Then the CIA came along. It has new covers today.

Not only were the anti - Communist union succored, free enterprise industry survived too. The Communists concentrated on the big plants owned by major American corporations. In the late 40s they sent their action squads into the plants. They used chains. They used spikes to cut tires of trucks bringing in workers. They theorized that by driving off American investments, Europe's economy would collapse.

It did not. But scores of millions had to be spent to rescue the basic force in any nation's infrastructure -- the labor force which, in the wrong hands, can decide on the day a country shall stand still.

Of course, millions are still being spent annually to save other continents. But this petty cash is far short of the $250 million which the Soviet Union spends a year on its front covers. What's wrong with trying to match each ruble with a penny or two? Freedom's worth it.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

NATIONAL TRANSPORTATION WEEK

National Transportation Week will be observed this year from May 14 through 20. It has great significance to the vitality and future of this sprawling nation.

Even if you've never tried to sell ice cubes to an Eskimo in the middle of the Arctic night, the role of transport in modern economic life is apparent. Things are not very valuable until you take them someplace where they are wanted. Under the impetus of need and the opportunity of free enterprise, America can boast the largest, most versatile and efficient transport systems in the world. The consumer is the beneficiary. Volume production and lowest possible prices depend on coast-to-coast marketing - and that we have with automobiles in California (a mixed blessing) and lettuce in Detroit at any time of the year.

During Transportation Week, it will be emphasized that as a nation our future will depend on wise, comprehensive development of all modes of transport - rail, highway, air and water. For common carriers, government regulation is a great factor for good or ill. And here the future and the public interest demand that close attention be given to the concept of maximum competitive freedom for all with legislative advantage for none.

ACCENT ON YOUTH

Sen. Charles H. Percy (R Ill.) speaks at the Berkeley campus of the University of California on Monday (May 15).

A more than expected accent on youth is developing this far in advance of the scramble for the 1968 nominations and elections. The Democratic National Committee recently sent 40 Democratic House members, most of them young men, to campuses all over the country. The emphasis was on classroom participation and informal discussion.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's charisma for youth is so well established as scarcely to be worth detailing. His brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (Mass.), shares his Pied Piperism.

Gov. George Romney (R) of Michigan, who is certainly the front-runner for the G.O.P. nomination for President in 1968 - he's been beating President Johnson in the opinion polls recently - is busily appealing to youth. He took pains in a visit to Atlanta May 1 to meet with students at Morehouse College, a predominantly Negro Baptist school, and Emory University, which is largely white. His reception at Emory was noticeably warmer than at Morehouse.

It was on the latter campus that Romney delivered his blunt: "I have been raised from childhood with the firm belief that the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States are divinely inspired documents and as a result I have fought in my private life and in my public life to eliminate social injustice and racial discrimination."

The latest among the 1968 eligibles to turn to youth is freshmen Sen. Charles H. Percy (R Ill.), as evidenced by his mid-May appearances on the campuses at Berkeley and Southern California. Percy is no longer a dark horse, but, say a chestnut or even a gray. He said he was not a candidate for 1968 at a news conference in Concord, N. H., on April 7 but refused to rule out a change of mind next year.

Chuck Percy looks younger than his 48 years. He is well scrubbed and has a kind of Ivy League look. He has a clear deep voice and a polished manner. He is most telegenic. The Wall Street Journal notes his "Kennedy-like image."

Some of Percy's ideas seem likely to appeal especially to youth. "We owe it to the men who must fight our wars to promote peace and peaceful contact in every way we can. If we must accelerate the war - as the administration believes we must - then let us accelerate the pursuit of peace."

Percy favors not only open housing. On April 20 he introduced a bill - with the co-sponsorship of all other Republican Senators - that would set up a Comsat-type of non-profit corporation to float bonds to fund private sponsors for building or repairing homes for low-income families. Other Percy ideas have a similar fresh appeal to youth.

Party surveys show that only 35 per cent of college students now regard themselves as Democrats - a remarkable falling off from the days of President John F. Kennedy. Republicans are being drawn, if they are not pushing, into the vacuum.

And the Democrats are beginning to take fearful notice. On April 25 the National Committee announced plans for a "resources panel" of young people to capture the loyalty or at least the attention of their fellows.

Perhaps you have asked yourself - "With the federal government spending so much money on medical research, why do voluntary health agencies concern themselves with research?"

One of the leading physicians at the National Institutes of Health said: "In its conservative fashion, the Government is more likely to follow than to lead. Our support of research, therefore, is very largely limited to specifically defined research projects."

Who then must do the leading? The voluntary health agencies.

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society is an example. During the past year, the Society gave funds to the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness of the U.S. Public Health Service in order to begin a study on multiple sclerosis that looks promising but for which the federal government had not budgeted. Thus precious time was saved because the voluntary agency could act quickly.

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society has budgeted $1,000,000 for research in 1967. It will continue to investigate all hopeful, direct approaches to uncover the reasons for MS and related diseases, and to find an effective treatment. Since 1946, approximately seven million dollars has been expended on medical and scientific research by the Society.

To continue to delve into the mystery of MS, your dollars are needed. The partnership between government and a voluntary agency to compliment and supplement one another is a truly American phenomenon. Another is that we help one another - so please give generously when the MS volunteer calls.

May very well reap just about what he sowed."

This message is contained in The Travelers Insurance Companies annual highway accident booklet, which reports 52,500 deaths and 4,400,000 injuries last year. Statistics in the booklet were compiled from reports by state motor vehicle departments.

Excessive speed is blamed for more than 41 percent of the highway deaths in 1966. It is the largest single factor in all fatal accidents resulting from driver error.

Other major factors involving actions of drivers resulting in deaths and injuries include driving on the wrong side of the road, reckless driving and not having the right-of-way.

Drivers in 1966 were blamed for more than 80 percent of all fatal accidents while pedestrians, or a combination of pedestrian and driver, were found at fault in the remaining 20 percent.

To help prevent accidents, a Travelers spokesman suggests that drivers update driving skills by taking a driver refresher course; practice 'defensive driving'; limit driving when tired; adjust speed to highway weather, traffic and other conditions; and don't drive under the influence of alcohol.

He also urged motorists to support better law enforcement, highway improvement, and improved driver licensing.

John's conscience bothered him as he confided to a close friend:

"I have made love to many women. I'm going to my wife tonight and confess and beg her forgiveness."

So to his wife he confided his flames.

Naturally she was hurt and asked, "Was it Mrs. Green?"

"I won't tell you," came the reply.

"Was it Mrs. Brown?"

"Was it Mrs. Casey?"

"Well," retorted the now angered wife, "if you won't tell me who they are, I won't forgive you."

The next day John met his friend who asked:

"Listen John, did your wife forgive you?"

"No, Bill, she didn't, but she gave me some swell leads."

As they entered the chamber the Princess said, "I offer you my honor" and the prince replied, "Madame, I honor your offer." And that is the way it went all night long -- honor, offer, honor, offer."

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- In a world plagued with hunger, the bureaucrats inside the agriculture department are battling to reduce this country's wheat acreage.

They argue that a wheat cutback will push up prices and bring contentment to the farms, that contented farmers are more likely to vote next year to keep the Democrats in power.

This is callous reasoning at a time when the nation needs every bushel of wheat the farmers can grow to fight famine in India and to keep up our own dwindling grain reserves. The national wheat backlog has dropped below a seventh-month supply, which is considered dangerously low.

The backstage debate over wheat acreage has become almost a family squabble between former Minnesotans. Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman, a onetime Minnesota governor, has been pushed by his advisers into a position favoring acreage cuts.

He is vigorously opposed by Vice President Hubert Humphrey, a former senator from Minnesota, who wants to boost wheat production. Supporting the Vice President is his former senate aide, Herb Waters, who now heads the war - on - hunger program.

Freeman has pointed out in private conversations that the farmers, troubled over falling wheat prices, planted less than half of the 30 per cent increase in wheat acreage they were granted for the past season.

LBJ, POPE AGREE

The solution is not to cut back acreage, Humphrey has responded, but to increase the incentive for farmers. He has urged President Johnson to ask congress for higher wheat subsidies.

The President, a populist at heart, is emotionally committed to the war against hunger. He was briefed on the program at a national security council meeting last year by David Bell, then foreign aid administrator, who described the hunger in the world and the need for American food.

When Bell finished, the President slapped the table.

"We need to grow more wheat!" he declared emphatically.

Note: Herb Waters discussed the world food problem in the Vatican the other day with Pope Paul, who has been critical of the Vietnam war. Waters told him the American aim was not only to help feed the hungry but to teach them how to grow more food to feed themselves. "We are allies in this war," Pope said with a smile, referring to the war on hunger as opposed to the Vietnam war.

PENTAGON PADDING

The Pentagon, contradicting a Hanoi claim that 88,000 Americans were killed in Vietnam during the first nine months of 1966, charged that the figures were considerably inflated.

But the totals put out by the defense department -- 3,558 Americans dead and 41,000 Communists killed -- are also padded. The truth is that almost all Vietnamese killed in action, if they aren't wearing South Vietnamese uniforms, are lumped together as enemy dead. On occasion, this has even included women and children.

One combat soldier, whose name charitably is omitted, wrote to this column about the practice in his division.

"The daily enemy -- killed-in-action figures," he charged, "can be trusted as much as a paper bag can ge trusted to store water. Everyone killed who is not in a friendly uniform is counted as an enemy KIA.

"On one mission, I saw two unarmed men scamper from under some rocks and attempt to run away. One was shot through the heart; the other had his leg nearly severed by a M-16 round.

"The former was listed as an enemy KIA. Maybe he was. Maybe he was a villager who hid from the enemy just as he tried to hide from us.

"On another mission, a woman killed by aerial rocket artillery, fired from fire-breathing choppers, was likewise listed as an enemy KIA."

SUPPRESSED REPORT?

The Senate Republican Policy Committee's controversial report on the Vietnam war is being suppressed by its chairman, Sen. Bourke Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, who has rejected several offers from private publishing houses to reprint the report.

While he has been grandly turning down all publishers, however, Public Affairs Press has rushed the report into print without bothering to ask permission. Editor M. B. Schnapper contends that the report, prepared at the taxpayers' expense, is a public document.

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES

Sen. Steve Young, D-Ohio, the spryest elder statesman in the senate, has just written a penetrating diagnosis of Central Intelligence for Playboy magazine. It's published this month among all the undraped females. The CIA, incidentally, no longer uses sexy gals as spies. . . . Rep. Fred Schwengel, R-Iowa, who has promoted a color booklet about the U. S. Capital, on sale to tourists for $1, isn't making any money from it. Proceeds go to the Capital Historical Society, which Schwengel heads. Some of Schwengel's colleagues have been critical over the sale of the book through Capitol Guides. . . A Louisville police court held an Episcopalian Priest, Rev. Charles Brandets Tachau, on $5,000 bond in the recent open - housing demonstrations, while holding three Nazi - American demonstrations from Chicago for only $2,000. Father Tachau has now been released; but Buford Posey, formerly of Mississippi and now employed in the Gambian Embassy in Washington, is still under bond. Posey says he was arrested in Louisville while watching the demonstrations after a TV reporter remarked that he had come from Philadelphia, Miss. According to Posey this was enough to prompt the Louisville police to arrest him.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

IN AND OUT OF THE CIA

Italy's Union Chief Askes U.S. Labor For $18 Million Annually to Fight Communists.

Washington, D. C. -- In "central intelligence" they operate on the theory that the price is always right if the "information" or operation is vital to survival of this nation and its interests.

How high is right? Judge for yourself. In Rome, an Italian labor leader once asked former Teamsters' leader, blue - eyed Dave Beck, for $18 million annually just to "compete" with what the Communist Party of Italy was throwing into union organizing work.

Even Dave Beck blanched to his bald pate. But he had asked a direct question. He got a direct answer from Giulio Pastore, then chief of the Confederation of Italian Labor Syndicates (CISL) and now Minister without portfolio in the Italian cabinet. (I vouch for this story.)

I was there when Beck asked Pastore how much it would take for an effective counteraction against the Communist apparatus. We were in Pastore's office. With us were Beck's son and two representatives of the AFL. That was in 1953. Characteristically, Beck raised a few dollars and contributed an automobile. But some one had to pay the bill to save Italy from first being crippled by Communist - led general strikes -- and then from seizure by paramilitary action squads in factories, transport and on the docks.

Some of the money came from American labor. The bulk came from the Central Ingelligence Agency. It was dollar for ruble. Why not?

The most never diminished.

As late as 1962, Walter Reuther urged the U.S. government to make $2 million available for a fight in Italy. His strategy called for uniting all the Italian metal workers (steel, auto, shipbuilding, construction, etc.) in one big union. This was to include the anti - Communists, the Socialists, and the Communists in a mass federation. The $2 million was approved. The AFL - CIO President George Meany fought it. He would not have any dealings with the Communist unions -- no united front. He called the late President Kennedy. The project was killed.

But other operations were not. They're under way right now in Latin America, Africa and Asia. Why not? Britain's MI-6, France's Deuzieme Bureau and other national intelligence services manipulated similar fronts. The U. S. would be out in the cold if the CIA to kill its "labor unit."

But to know why the national AFL-CIO leaders such as George Meany are agitated by the reports of CIA funding, the public should know that the labor leaders were there long before the CIA was a gleam in Harry Truman's eye.

When the Nazis began gas-chambering labor leaders, the garment workers' Davis Dubinsky went to Franklin Roosevelt and got 300 visas for their entry into the U. S. The peppery needle trades' chief knew that some day, after the war was over, labor men would be needed to rebuild a free and anti-Communist movement.

The money then came from his ladies garment workers and the AFL. Later he and Jay Lovestone, a most unmysterious cloakless chap -- who worked with the Catholic underground as well as with those in the CIA who sought information -- and the late AFL first vice - president Matthew Woll launched the Free Trade Union Committee. They spent millions. But it was all labor money.

They worked closely with the labor desk of the Office of Strategic Services (OSS). Its chief was a Chicago labor lawyer, by name of Arthur Goldberg. By 1944 they were swinging. The CIA did not get into action until 1948. Then it had to pull together all the remnants of the old wartime OSS. By that time the AFL not only had Jay Lovestone and Irving Brown (a sort of Scarlet Pimpernel who knew every Communist cell and every great restaurant in Europe), but also Henry Rutz, a chap who did a skilled job in educating British and U. S. Army occupation officers. Rutz taught them the difference between Communists, pro - Communist Socialists, anti - Communist Socialists and Social Democrats.

This not - very - Ian Flemingish trio helped save West Berlin, Germany, France, Italy and Finland, too. Then the CIA came along. It has new covers today.

Not only were the anti - Communist union succored, free enterprise industry survived too. The Communists concentrated on the big plants owned by major American corporations. In the late 40s they sent their action squads into the plants. They used chains. They used spikes to cut tires of trucks bringing in workers. They theorized that by driving off American investments, Europe's economy would collapse.

It did not. But scores of millions had to be spent to rescue the basic force in any nation's infrastructure -- the labor force which, in the wrong hands, can decide on the day a country shall stand still.

Of course, millions are still being spent annually to save other continents. But this petty cash is far short of the $250 million which the Soviet Union spends a year on its front covers. What's wrong with trying to match each ruble with a penny or two? Freedom's worth it.

Cape Hosts MIAA Thinclads

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- At least 10 conference records are in jeopardy this weekend as one of the most star-studded MIAA outdoor track meets in history gets underway at Southeast Missouri State College.

Action starts today at 4 p.m. with the preliminaries and finals of the shot put, long jump and javelin. Preliminaries in the 120-yard high hurdles, and the 440, 880, 220 and 100 events begin at 4:30.

Finals in the pole vault, high jump and discus begin at noon Saturday, and final running events at 12:30 p.m.

With good weather, almost the entire outdoor track record book could be rewritten. Conference athletes have already turned in times and distances that would eclipse existing marks.

Defending champion Northeast Missouri, with its outstanding corps of middle-distance runners, is favored to repeat for its ninth straight outdoor track title. Close competition, however, should be provided by the host Southeast Missouri team, with strength in the distance races and field events, and Central Missouri, a contender in the middle distances and dashes. Standout individuals from the other conference teams. Northwest Missouri, Southwest Missouri and the University of Missouri at Rolla, could place their teams well up in the final standings.

Records that have already been surpassed this season include:

220-yard dash (:21.3), where record - holder Willie Weaver of Central has clocked :21.1 this year;

880-yard run (1:53.6), owned by Central's Terry Cotter, who has run 1:53.5 this year. Central's Gary Mount and Glenn Thompson have also been near that mark, as have Ron Werling and Wayne Denney of Northeast;

Mile run (4:16.8), topped this season by Southeast's Bill Wirtz with a 4:13.7 time;

2-mile run (9:32), also beaten handily by Wirtz at 9:22;

440 intermediate hurdles (:55.1), where record - holder Bill Douglass of Southwest Missouri has this year run :54.9. Also threatening the record are Central's Lyle Anderson and Southeast's Dave Lehman;

440 relay (:41.8), shaded by Northeast's :41.6, and threatened by Central, Southeast and Southwest;

Mile relay (3:16.2), shattered earlier by Northeast in 3:10.4 (an average of :47.9 per man);

Long jump (23'3 3/4"), topped this season by Byron Russell of Central with a jump of 24'1 3'4";

Pole vault (14'1 3/4"), beaten at 14'9" by southeast's Dwain Bridges and threatened by record -holder Sandy Farrar of Southwest at 14'7"; Shot put (52'3 3/4"), topped by Southeast's Terry Coff with 53'9" and by Central's Dave Walls and Northeast's Paul Economides with 52' 8 1/2" each.

In addition to the record time and distances already beaten, performances this season indicate the possibility of records in all other events with the exception of the javelin. The javelin mark of 224'9" stands a full 15 feet beyond the best distance posted this year, a 209' throw by Southeast's Gene McClellan.

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Two veterans of the women's tour — Jo Ann Prentice and Shirley Englehorn — led the field, reduced by illness to 47 pros and five amateurs, in the $16,000 Dallas Civitan Open Golf Tournament today.

And they fought something new for this tournament that in the past has found rain the bugaboo — searing heat.

But heat didn't affect the littlest gal of them all —10-year-old Beverly Klass, youngest person ever to turn pro and youngest ever to play in a woman's open golf tournament.

The little girl (95 pounds but strong) shot an 88 in the first 18-hole round she ever played in an open tournament. It was last in the field but it was considered quite marvelous for one so young and inexperienced in the art of handling a golf ball.

"I played pretty good," she said, "but I hit a couple of bad shots — well, maybe more than that."

But she showed she wasn't tired or worried about the sapping heat — she went swimming for two hours.

Beverly goes out first today in the second round of the tournament that finds Misses Prentice and Englehorn, who fired four-under-par 67s Thursday, leading by two strokes.

Qualifing Runs Saturday For 500

By DALE BURGESS

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — An international field of drivers will make 10 - mile dashes against the clock Saturday in one of sport's best - attended preliminary events, qualifications for the 500 - mile auto race May 30 at Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

A crowd upwards of 150,000 is likely to watch Mario Andretti, Nazareth, Pa., try to beat the qualifying record of 165.899 m.p.h. he set last year.

Andretti, U.S. Auto Club champion the last two seasons, hit 168 unofficially in practice sessions both in 1966 and this spring when conditions were ideal.

His Ford - powered Brawner Hawk will be challenged by two entirely different types of machines — the STP Pratt & Whitney gas turbine driven by Parnelli Jones, Torrance, Calif., the 1963 Indianapolis winner, and the Mongoose turbocharged Offenhauser driven by Lloyd Ruby, Wichita Falls, Tex., who has never been worse than 11th in seven Speedway starts.

Jones has turned laps at almost 166 m.p.h. in the turbine. Ruby also has turned laps well over 165.

Indians, Twins, Braves Win

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pitching for Minnesota has made Ohio farmboy Dean Chance happier than a farmer with a pen full of hogs and the market price doubled.

The hard-firing right-hander, who had fallen on sad times since winning the Cy Young Award with the California Angels, is rounding up the scattered Twins and fattening them up as a pennant threat.

"With this team, I don't think I'm going to lose another game," Chance said in an expansive mood Thursday night after blanking Kansas City 8-0 on a one-hitter.

"It's fun when you win; it's fun to play the game," he said, responding to his 5-1 record which makes him the winningest pitcher in the American League. "It means something to play for a pennant contender because you know you're playing for something."

Chance, who operates two farms with a total of about 285 acres near Wooster, Ohio, also owns almost half of Minnesota's 11 victories and has kept the sluggish Twins tied for sixth, only 4½ games from the lead.

Steven Hargan and Bob Bruce also had reason to be jubilant. Hargan hurled a five-hitter in Cleveland's 2-1 victory over Washington in the only other American League game, and Bruce allowed only three hits in pitching Atlanta past Pittsburgh 9-2 in the only National League contest.

Chicago was rained out at Baltimore in the AL and Cincinnati got the same weather treatment at New York in the NL.

Chance, who fell to 15-10 in 1965 and then 12-17 last year after his 20 victories in 1964 earned him the Cy Young Award as baseball's best pitcher, is still rejoicing over the trade that brought him to the Twins.

"It's one of the biggest breaks I've had," he says of the deal in which the Twins gave up Don Mincher and Jimmie Hall to get him. Now he talks about being named comeback player of the year, winning 20 again and adding another Cy Young award.

"It's the difference between night and day with the runs this club gets me," said the 25-year-old hurler, who still is remembered for his escapades with Bo Belinsky as a member of the light-hitting Angels.

But the way Chance was throwing Thursday night, he only needed rookie Rich Reese's first major league homer with none on. Reese drove in two more runs and rookie Ron Clark socked in three more, but Chance made sure.

The only hit off him was Danny Cater's clean single in the fourth inning. He struck out eight and only six walks got him in trouble as he repaid the Twins for the one-hitter he threw against them in 1962.

Hargan, 3-3, did not have it so easy as he outdueled Camilo Pascual, 2-1. Hargan led 2-0 on two wild pitches that scored Fred Whitfield who doubled, and Chuck Hinton's run-scoring double.

But the Senators scored in the ninth inning when Hinton dropped a long fly for a three-base error after Frank Howard singled. However, Hargan struck out Paul Casanova to end the game.

Bruce breezed as the Braves jumped to a 4-0 lead against Tommie Sisk and added four unearned runs in the seventh, two on Felipe Alou's triple.

Sisk, who took the defeat, lasted on 3 1-3 innings. Gene Alley doubled home both Pittsburgh runs when Bruce faltered in the fourth inning before winning his second game in three decisions.

JERRY STOVALL Days in Charleston will be May 20 and 21. Stovall, defensive safety for the St. Louis football Cardinals, will speak to several local church groups during the two-day celebration.

NEARLY 5,000 school patrol members will convene to continue what must be one of baseball's longest hexes tonight when the St. Louis Cardinals take on the New York Mets at Busch Memorial Stadium in St. Louis.

The Cardinals have won all seven of the annual school patrol outings, and they will be out to keep the winning chain unbroken tonight.

The patrol members, representatives of some 350 schools in the St. Louis area and East out-state Missouri, will be greeted by special ceremonies prior to the Card-Met clash.

THE WRECK of the giant oil tanker...Torrey Canyon...in mid-March was more than just a human tragedy. In addition to fouling beaches in Cornwall and Brittany, the 120,000 gallons of oil that spilled out of the wreck killed thousands of water birds and marine creatures. Wildlife had again fallen victim to man and his increasingly complex environment.

Wildlife is fighting a losing battle with man for living space in all corners of the world. In the United States alone no fewer than 78 species - 16 mammals, 34 birds, 25 fish, one reptile, two amphibians - are considered "endangered."

An endangered species is defined as one whose prospects of survival and reproduction are in immediate jeopardy. Its peril may arise from one or more of several causes - disease, prediation, competition from a more agressive species, a change in habitat. An endangered species must have help lest extinction follow.

The various wild creatures making a last ditch fight for survival include both well known and obscure species. The whooping crame, grizzly bear, ivory-billed woodpecker and California condor are perhaps the most familiar names on the endangered list. The least familiar no doubt is the Devils Hole pupfish, a relic of the Ice Age, which is found only in a single, spring fed pool in Southern Nevada.

Clay's Next Fight Scheduled For June 5

HOUSTON (AP) — Cassius Clay's next fight is scheduled June 5 — but this one will be in a federal courtroom instead of the ring.

That's the date Clay has been ordered to stand trial on a charge of refusing to be inducted into the Army.

U.S. Dist. Judge Joe Ingraham set the trial date Thursday, three days after Clay was indicted by a federal grand jury.

The indictment came 10 days after Clay, who prefers to be known by his Black Muslim name of Muhammad Ali, refused to take the oath as a draftee.

Conviction could bring a fine of $10,000 and a five-year prison sentence.

Clay was stripped of his world heavyweight boxing championship following his refusal to be inducted, but he had indicated he planned to continue his fighting career with overseas abouts.

Meanwhile, the 5th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans has denied a request for a temporary injunction restraining Clay's draft board from declaring him delinquent and instituting criminal action for his refusal to heed the call.

Quinnan Hodges of Houston, one of Clay's lawyers, said the injunction request will be delivered Monday to Justice Hugo Black of the U.S. Supreme Court.

The 5th Circuit Court also is to consider Monday motions to advance two appeals on the calendar and a motion to issue a writ of prohibition to stop the scheduled June 5 trial.

The two appeals are on civil cases filed in U.S. district courts here in which Clay contends his 1-A classification is unconstitutional and was brought about because of racial and religious prejudice and public opinion.

Records that have already been surpassed this season include:

220-yard dash (:21.3), where record - holder Willie Weaver of Central has clocked :21.1 this year;

880-yard run (1:53.6), owned by Central's Terry Cotter, who has run 1:53.5 this year. Central's Gary Mount and Glenn Thompson have also been near that mark, as have Ron Werling and Wayne Denney of Northeast;

Mile run (4:16.8), topped this season by Southeast's Bill Wirtz with a 4:13.7 time;

2-mile run (9:32), also beaten handily by Wirtz at 9:22;

440 intermediate hurdles (:55.1), where record - holder Bill Douglass of Southwest Missouri has this year run :54.9. Also threatening the record are Central's Lyle Anderson and Southeast's Dave Lehman;

440 relay (:41.8), shaded by Northeast's :41.6, and threatened by Central, Southeast and Southwest;

Mile relay (3:16.2), shattered earlier by Northeast in 3:10.4 (an average of :47.9 per man);

Long jump (23'3 3/4"), topped this season by Byron Russell of Central with a jump of 24'1 3'4";

Pole vault (14'1 3/4"), beaten at 14'9" by southeast's Dwain Bridges and threatened by record -holder Sandy Farrar of Southwest at 14'7"; Shot put (52'3 3/4"), topped by Southeast's Terry Coff with 53'9" and by Central's Dave Walls and Northeast's Paul Economides with 52' 8 1/2" each.

In addition to the record time and distances already beaten, performances this season indicate the possibility of records in all other events with the exception of the javelin. The javelin mark of 224'9" stands a full 15 feet beyond the best distance posted this year, a 209' throw by Southeast's Gene McClellan.

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Two veterans of the women's tour — Jo Ann Prentice and Shirley Englehorn — led the field, reduced by illness to 47 pros and five amateurs, in the $16,000 Dallas Civitan Open Golf Tournament today.

And they fought something new for this tournament that in the past has found rain the bugaboo — searing heat.

But heat didn't affect the littlest gal of them all —10-year-old Beverly Klass, youngest person ever to turn pro and youngest ever to play in a woman's open golf tournament.

The little girl (95 pounds but strong) shot an 88 in the first 18-hole round she ever played in an open tournament. It was last in the field but it was considered quite marvelous for one so young and inexperienced in the art of handling a golf ball.

"I played pretty good," she said, "but I hit a couple of bad shots — well, maybe more than that."

But she showed she wasn't tired or worried about the sapping heat — she went swimming for two hours.

Beverly goes out first today in the second round of the tournament that finds Misses Prentice and Englehorn, who fired four-under-par 67s Thursday, leading by two strokes.

Lewis I. Flewelling, better known to his golfing partners as "Flew," scored the first hole-in-one of his career yesterday at the Sikeston country club. "Flew" picked a five iron out of his bag and ran the ball squarely into the cup to score his ace on the 150 yard sixth hole.

Flewelling has played golf 52 years. He was playing in a foursome with J. F. Cox, Stan Bush and Oren Dahl.

Flewelling finished with a 48.

Qualifing Runs

Saturday For 500

By DALE BURGESS

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — An international field of drivers will make 10 - mile dashes against the clock Saturday in one of sport's best - attended preliminary events, qualifications for the 500 - mile auto race May 30 at Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

A crowd upwards of 150,000 is likely to watch Mario Andretti, Nazareth, Pa., try to beat the qualifying record of 165.899 m.p.h. he set last year.

Andretti, U.S. Auto Club champion the last two seasons, hit 168 unofficially in practice sessions both in 1966 and this spring when conditions were ideal.

His Ford - powered Brawner Hawk will be challenged by two entirely different types of machines — the STP Pratt & Whitney gas turbine driven by Parnelli Jones, Torrance, Calif., the 1963 Indianapolis winner, and the Mongoose turbocharged Offenhauser driven by Lloyd Ruby, Wichita Falls, Tex., who has never been worse than 11th in seven Speedway starts.

Jones has turned laps at almost 166 m.p.h. in the turbine. Ruby also has turned laps well over 165.

Pitching for Minnesota has made Ohio farmboy Dean Chance happier than a farmer with a pen full of hogs and the market price doubled.

The hard-firing right-hander, who had fallen on sad times since winning the Cy Young Award with the California Angels, is rounding up the scattered Twins and fattening them up as a pennant threat.

"With this team, I don't think I'm going to lose another game," Chance said in an expansive mood Thursday night after blanking Kansas City 8-0 on a one-hitter.

"It's fun when you win; it's fun to play the game," he said, responding to his 5-1 record which makes him the winningest pitcher in the American League. "It means something to play for a pennant contender because you know you're playing for something."

Chance, who operates two farms with a total of about 285 acres near Wooster, Ohio, also owns almost half of Minnesota's 11 victories and has kept the sluggish Twins tied for sixth, only 4½ games from the lead.

Steven Hargan and Bob Bruce also had reason to be jubilant. Hargan hurled a five-hitter in Cleveland's 2-1 victory over Washington in the only other American League game, and Bruce allowed only three hits in pitching Atlanta past Pittsburgh 9-2 in the only National League contest.

Chicago was rained out at Baltimore in the AL and Cincinnati got the same weather treatment at New York in the NL.

Chance, who fell to 15-10 in 1965 and then 12-17 last year after his 20 victories in 1964 earned him the Cy Young Award as baseball's best pitcher, is still rejoicing over the trade that brought him to the Twins.

"It's one of the biggest breaks I've had," he says of the deal in which the Twins gave up Don Mincher and Jimmie Hall to get him. Now he talks about being named comeback player of the year, winning 20 again and adding another Cy Young award.

"It's the difference between night and day with the runs this club gets me," said the 25-year-old hurler, who still is remembered for his escapades with Bo Belinsky as a member of the light-hitting Angels.

But the way Chance was throwing Thursday night, he only needed rookie Rich Reese's first major league homer with none on. Reese drove in two more runs and rookie Ron Clark socked in three more, but Chance made sure.

The only hit off him was Danny Cater's clean single in the fourth inning. He struck out eight and only six walks got him in trouble as he repaid the Twins for the one-hitter he threw against them in 1962.

Hargan, 3-3, did not have it so easy as he outdueled Camilo Pascual, 2-1. Hargan led 2-0 on two wild pitches that scored Fred Whitfield who doubled, and Chuck Hinton's run-scoring double.

But the Senators scored in the ninth inning when Hinton dropped a long fly for a three-base error after Frank Howard singled. However, Hargan struck out Paul Casanova to end the game.

Bruce breezed as the Braves jumped to a 4-0 lead against Tommie Sisk and added four unearned runs in the seventh, two on Felipe Alou's triple.

Sisk, who took the defeat, lasted on 3 1-3 innings. Gene Alley doubled home both Pittsburgh runs when Bruce faltered in the fourth inning before winning his second game in three decisions.

JERRY STOVALL Days in Charleston will be May 20 and 21. Stovall, defensive safety for the St. Louis football Cardinals, will speak to several local church groups during the two-day celebration.

NEARLY 5,000 school patrol members will convene to continue what must be one of baseball's longest hexes tonight when the St. Louis Cardinals take on the New York Mets at Busch Memorial Stadium in St. Louis.

The Cardinals have won all seven of the annual school patrol outings, and they will be out to keep the winning chain unbroken tonight.

The patrol members, representatives of some 350 schools in the St. Louis area and East out-state Missouri, will be greeted by special ceremonies prior to the Card-Met clash.

THE WRECK of the giant oil tanker...Torrey Canyon...in mid-March was more than just a human tragedy. In addition to fouling beaches in Cornwall and Brittany, the 120,000 gallons of oil that spilled out of the wreck killed thousands of water birds and marine creatures. Wildlife had again fallen victim to man and his increasingly complex environment.

Wildlife is fighting a losing battle with man for living space in all corners of the world. In the United States alone no fewer than 78 species - 16 mammals, 34 birds, 25 fish, one reptile, two amphibians - are considered "endangered."

An endangered species is defined as one whose prospects of survival and reproduction are in immediate jeopardy. Its peril may arise from one or more of several causes - disease, prediation, competition from a more agressive species, a change in habitat. An endangered species must have help lest extinction follow.

The various wild creatures making a last ditch fight for survival include both well known and obscure species. The whooping crame, grizzly bear, ivory-billed woodpecker and California condor are perhaps the most familiar names on the endangered list. The least familiar no doubt is the Devils Hole pupfish, a relic of the Ice Age, which is found only in a single, spring fed pool in Southern Nevada.

Clay's Next Fight Scheduled For June 5

HOUSTON (AP) — Cassius Clay's next fight is scheduled June 5 — but this one will be in a federal courtroom instead of the ring.

That's the date Clay has been ordered to stand trial on a charge of refusing to be inducted into the Army.

U.S. Dist. Judge Joe Ingraham set the trial date Thursday, three days after Clay was indicted by a federal grand jury.

The indictment came 10 days after Clay, who prefers to be known by his Black Muslim name of Muhammad Ali, refused to take the oath as a draftee.

Conviction could bring a fine of $10,000 and a five-year prison sentence.

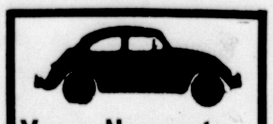

Clay was stripped of his world heavyweight boxing championship following his refusal to be inducted, but he had indicated he planned to continue his fighting career with overseas abouts.

Meanwhile, the 5th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans has denied a request for a temporary injunction restraining Clay's draft board from declaring him delinquent and instituting criminal action for his refusal to heed the call.

Quinnan Hodges of Houston, one of Clay's lawyers, said the injunction request will be delivered Monday to Justice Hugo Black of the U.S. Supreme Court.

The 5th Circuit Court also is to consider Monday motions to advance two appeals on the calendar and a motion to issue a writ of prohibition to stop the scheduled June 5 trial.

The two appeals are on civil cases filed in U.S. district courts here in which Clay contends his 1-A classification is unconstitutional and was brought about because of racial and religious prejudice and public opinion.

Draft Quota up Again in July

WASHINGTON AP -- The Defense Department Wednesday issued a July Draft call for induction of 19,900 young men to serve with the Army. It is the highest draft call this year.

The July quota is slightly higher than the 19,800 for June, and the 18,000 for May.

The low point came in February when only 10,900 were inducted.

Defense officials have said that draft calls will begin to rise about midyear to replace young men who were inducted under the sharply increased Vietnam buildup which began in the late summer of 1965.

Prof Says Twiggy to Replace Sophia Shape

NEW YORK (AP) -- The shape of feminine things to come looks more like Twiggy than Sophia Loren, says Marshall McLuhan, the Canadian professor whose theories on communications have assumed the status of prophecy on Madison Avenue.

"Forms of womanhood like Sophia Loren have had it," McLuhan said at his first recording date.

McLuhan, 55, a professor at Toronto University, is the author of the best-selling book "The Medium is the Message" which contends it is more how you say it than what you say that counts in the electronic age.

Broadcasting Herbicides Result of Labor Shortage

By John D. Garrett
Extension Area Soils Agent

PORTAGEVILLE - Because of labor shortage, many farmers have gone to complete weed control by broadcasting their herbicides before planting. In general, this means the total amount of nitrogen used on corn is applied preplant or at planting.

Even though the trend is toward more nitrogen being applied preplant, the bulk is still sidedressed. Either method of application - preplant or sidedressing - has advantages. Personal preferences, available equipment, convenience, soil conditions and cost per pound of nitrogen are the determining factors.

Since preplant time has already passed and you didn't apply nitrogen, then you have already lost the advantages you may have gained by early application. However, corn response to nitrogen applied as a sidedressing is usually comparable to or superior to preplant N.

Remember, an adequate supply of nutrients is essential. A shortage of nitrogen will limit the uptake of phosphorous and potassium by the crop. A poor lime situation will reduce the efficiency of all nutrients.

Nitrogen is the yield regulator, provided mineral fertility is adequate. Research has shown that from 120 to 160 total pounds per acre of actual nitrogen are required annually for top production. If corn is irrigated, the higher rate should be used. Usually 120 to 130 lbs. are sufficient without irrigation. In order to get top yields from applied nitrogen, the final stalk population should be around 18,000 plants per acre. This will change as new hybrids and technology are developed.

ADVANTAGES OF SIDEDRESSING

You can apply nitrogen in years when you need it and omit it in other years. For example, you may have a very poor stand or large drowned or frozen out areas, you can save the nitrogen you planned to sidedress. Last year, 1966, was a situation like this. But if you have an usually good stand and plenty of moisture available to produce top yields, you can sidedress at an extra high rate. Sidedressing gets the nitrogen on after the weeds are controlled, so you fertilize corn, not weeds. Finally, there's less time for nitrogen to leach from sandy soils or break down by denitrification in poorly drained soils.

TIME OF APPLICATION

Nitrogen can be sidedressed any time after you get a stand until the corn is too tall to get equipment through. Generally, the earlier corn is sidedressed the better you are. If possible, sidedressing should be completed before the corn roots are developed to where they may be pruned.

Roots develop rapidly under favorable conditions. The roots are usually as long as the plant is tall, and some are near the surface. To avoid root damage much as possible, sidedress in the middles of the row. You'll gain nothing by closer placement to the row, since corn roots meet across the row by the time the crop is knee-high.

SOURCE OF NITROGEN

All of the common nitrogen fertilizers are acceptable for sidedressing, but anhydrous ammonia, ammonium nitrate, nitrogen solutions, and urea are the most popular sources in our area. Each one of these sources contain different percent nitrogen.

These are as follows: anhydrous ammonia 82 percent, ammonium nitrate 33.5 percent; nitrogen solutions 28 to 32 percent, and urea 45 percent. Research on these sources of nitrogen has been conducted in many areas and there has been no difference due to source when equivalent rates, time and method of application are used. Regardless of the source used, it should be applied under the soil surface. Nitrogen moves into corn roots along with water. It is preferable to sidedress dry and liquid non-pressure forms one to two inches deep.

Anhydrous ammonia should be applied five to six inches or deeper. When applying ammonia, be sure the soil is loose enough to get a good seal. The slit should be properly covered with plenty of loose soil by use of paddles, disks, chains, or other suitable device. Anhydrous is an excellent source of nitrogen but it must be handled properly for best results.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

Herman Roth, one of 33 designer craftsmen in silver in this country, spent 36 years in the U.S. Post Office Department before devoting full time to his art. He had always been interested in silver smithing as a hobby. Upon retirement in 1956 he found he not only had a fine reputation but a business as well. His interest in Judaic (his own faith) and Christian art led to his designing and making religious pieces in silver.

Today at an age when most men are willing to relax, Mr. Roth is more active than ever. Fifty per cent of his output consists of religious pieces—chalices, Hanukkah lamps, etc. "It is the most rewarding work I've done," he says. He is expressing his faith in his craft so that others may express theirs. He has turned down high salaried, permanent positions with large silver houses so that he could continue his personal commitment to churches and synagogues. A great deal of his time is spent lecturing and teaching throughout the country to preserve and continue the craft that expresses his faith.

When asked about his own faith, he said, "There has always been someone looking out for me. If it had been left up to me I'd have made a mess of it."

Broadcasting Herbicides Result of Labor Shortage

By John D. Garrett
Extens on Area Soils Agent

PORTAGEVILLE - Because of labor shortage, many farmers have gone to complete weed control by broadcasting their herbicides before planting. In general, this means the total amount of nitrogen used on corn is applied preplant or at planting.

Even though the trend is toward more nitrogen being applied preplant, the bulk is still sidedressed. Either method of application - preplant or sidedressing - has advantages. Personal preferences, available equipment, convenience, soil conditions and cost per pound of nitrogen are the determining factors.

Since preplant time has already passed and you didn't apply nitrogen, then you have already lost the advantages you may have gained by early application. However, corn response to nitrogen applied as a sidedressing is usually comparable to or superior to preplant N.

Remember, an adequate supply of nutrients is essential. A shortage of nitrogen will limit the uptake of phosphorous and potassium by the crop. A poor lime situation will reduce the efficiency of all nutrients.

Nitrogen is the yield regulator, provided mineral fertility is adequate. Research has shown that from 120 to 160 total pounds per acre of actual nitrogen are required annually for top production. If corn is irrigated, the higher rate should be used. Usually 120 to 130 lbs. are sufficient without irrigation. Carr Cited for LP Promotion

The "Flames of Salvation" exhibit which paraded through the streets of Sikeston last year has brought national recognition to its originator.

John E. Carr, Jr., 902 Hawthorne, president of the National Gas Company of Missouri, received an honorable mention in the third annual "Sales Builder of the Year" competition sponsored by Butane -- Propane News, trade publication covering the liquefied petroleum gas industry.

Last summer Carr, to call attention to the growing use of LP-gas for crop flaming in this area, gathered together 33 flame cultivators pulled by tractors. With pilot lights flaring, the contigent toured the streets of Sikeston.

Announcement of the award was made by editor William W. Clark at the recent 11th annual Butane - Propane News roundtable at Chicago prior to the National Liquefied Petion.

Butane - Propane News annually honors members of the LP - gas industry who have recorded outstanding sales promotion of marketing accomplishments. Four "Sales Builder of the Year" awards were presented this year, along with 10 honorable mentions.

NO IMMUNITY

I never feared Cupid's dart..
Believe myself immune...
But when I aimed straight at my heart,
I quickly changed my tune.

He does not fool around one bit.
His arrow sings much like a harp;
So does my heart...I must admit.

John E. Carr Jr.

Carr Cited for LP Promotion

The "Flames of Salvation" exhibit which paraded through the streets of Sikeston last year has brought national recognition to its originator.

John E. Carr, Jr., 902 Hawthorne, president of the National Gas Company of Missouri, received an honorable mention in the third annual "Sales Builder of the Year" competition sponsored by Butane -- Propane News, trade publication covering the liquefied petroleum gas industry.

Last summer Carr, to call attention to the growing use of LP-gas for crop flaming in this area, gathered together 33 flame cultivators pulled by tractors. With pilot lights flaring, the contigent toured the streets of Sikeston.

Announcement of the award was made by editor William W. Clark at the recent 11th annual Butane - Propane News roundtable at Chicago prior to the National Liquefied Petion.

Butane - Propane News annually honors members of the LP - gas industry who have recorded outstanding sales promotion of marketing accomplishments. Four "Sales Builder of the Year" awards were presented this year, along with 10 honorable mentions.

Masonic Barbecue

Next Thursday

Drinks will be free and carry out orders will be available.

NO IMMUNITY

I never feared Cupid's dart..
Believe myself immune...
But when I aimed straight at my heart,
I quickly changed my tune.
That little fellow's dart is sharp,
He does not fool around one bit.
His arrow sings much like a harp;
So does my heart...I must admit.

SPRING TRAINING

Being an independent insurance agent is like being in spring training twelve months of the year. And a motto like "P.S."—Personal Service keeps us running just a little bit harder than the next guy. But it's worth it to keep our business and your insurance in good shape. We'll be seeing you.

College Draft Tests to Be Discontinued

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Draft Director Lewis B. Hershey said Wednesday the Selective Service System is discontinuing its college qualification tests.

These are the three-hour, 150-question examinations designed to help local draft boards determine which students, if any, should be called into the armed services.

Scores made on the tests are made a part of draft board records. Since last May nearly a million students have taken the exams.

Hershey said that with the entire question of student draft deferments in an open state, the tests will not be offered next fall.

He made the statement at the Capitol where he gave a personal endorsement to continuation of college deferments for undergraduate students.

Ex-Postmaster - General J. Edward Day recounts the story of a woman in Kansas who went into her local post office shortly after Kennedy was elected. When she asked the clerk for 50 cents worth of stamps, he replied, "What denomination?"

"Well, I didn't know it would ever come to that," she snapped angrily. "Baptist."

Blodgett Homecoming Set May 28

BLODGETT - All former Blodgett residents are invited to return May 28 for the annual memorial and homecoming services.

A basket dinner will be at 12:30 p.m. in the Methodist church.

All visitors will be registered as they arrive so that they can participate when news is exchanged.

After dinner, a memorial service at the honor roll board will begin at 2:30 p.m.

This traditional affair was begun during World War II. It gives former neighbors an opportunity to renew acquaintances and to honor past and present armed forces personnel. Special recognition is given to those who died in World War II and the Korean War.

Springfield Area Towns Seek Turnpike Route

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - Several communities on a possible turnpike route south of Kansas City to the Arkansas line via Springfield met Wednesday to discuss means of attracting state attention to its advantages.

They agreed to support a letter proposed by the Springfield and Kansas City chambers of commerce to Gov. Warren E. Hearnes suggesting a feasibility study be initiated.

Among cities represented were Kansas City, Springfield, Clinton, Harrisonville, Bolivar, Osceola and Lowry City.

College Draft Tests to Be Discontinued

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Draft Director Lewis B. Hershey said Wednesday the Selective Service System is discontinuing its college qualification tests.

These are the three-hour, 150-question examinations designed to help local draft boards determine which students, if any, should be called into the armed services.

Scores made on the tests are made a part of draft board records. Since last May nearly a million students have taken the exams.

Hershey said that with the entire question of student draft deferments in an open state, the tests will not be offered next fall.

He made the statement at the Capitol where he gave a personal endorsement to continuation of college deferments for undergraduate students.

Ex-Postmaster - General J. Edward Day recounts the story of a woman in Kansas who went into her local post office shortly after Kennedy was elected. When she asked the clerk for 50 cents worth of stamps, he replied, "What denomination?"

"Well, I didn't know it would ever come to that," she snapped angrily. "Baptist."

Blodgett Homecoming Set May 28

BLODGETT - All former Blodgett residents are invited to return May 28 for the annual memorial and homecoming services.

A basket dinner will be at 12:30 p.m. in the Methodist church.

All visitors will be registered as they arrive so that they can participate when news is exchanged.

After dinner, a memorial service at the honor roll board will begin at 2:30 p.m.

This traditional affair was begun during World War II. It gives former neighbors an opportunity to renew acquaintances and to honor past and present armed forces personnel. Special recognition is given to those who died in World War II and the Korean War.

Springfield Area Towns Seek Turnpike Route

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - Several communities on a possible turnpike route south of Kansas City to the Arkansas line via Springfield met Wednesday to discuss means of attracting state attention to its advantages.

They agreed to support a letter proposed by the Springfield and Kansas City chambers of commerce to Gov. Warren E. Hearnes suggesting a feasibility study be initiated.

Among cities represented were Kansas City, Springfield, Clinton, Harrisonville, Bolivar, Osceola and Lowry City.

Another route under consideration would project the toll road south from Kansas City via Joplin.

Milton Caniff, whose adventure strip, "Steve Canyon" is a regular feature of The Daily Standard will will be a guest with Mike Douglas on the nationally syndicated "Mike Douglas Show" and will introduce Linda Whatmore, the young New York model who is the original of "Bitsy Beekman", the pert fictional female pilot figuring in the strip's current sequence, May 19, Cape Girardeau Channel 12 at 3:30 p.m.

On the color TV show, Caniff explains what goes into the creation of a comic strip personality like "Bitsy" and, using his sketching pad before the TV cameras, attempts to originate a villainous character on the air. Actor Robert Taylor is co-host of the show and actress Agnes Moorehead is also a guest. During the interview, Caniff discloses which of all the characters he has created is his favorite and talks about the reception "Steve Canyon" has received in Russia.

On the week-end of April 19-May 1, Caniff and Linda will fly to Texas to participate in several celebrations. With a young model from Houston, Ann Meyer, representing "Poteet" Canyon, Colonel Steve Canyon's pretty ward, and Miss Whatmore as "Bitsy", Caniff will attend the closing ceremonies of the annual Strawberry Festival in Poteet, the Texas town which his adventure strip character has made famous. The trio also will appear at festivities marking the Fiftieth Anniversary of Kelly A. F. Field which started as a training base for Air Force pilots -- Colonel Canyon is an alumnus -- and at a Brunch given by the Texas State College chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, the national honorary journalistic sorority. At a dinner Saturday night, April 29th, in San Antonio, Caniff, probably the most honored of all cartoonists, will receive another award, a medal presented by the Order of Dedalians, an organization of U.S. Air Force pilots of World War I and II.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: My dear husband was only too happy to show me your column this morning--the one in which you said a wife should not expect her husband to get up at night with small children. Why don't you retire and turn your column over to someone whose mind has not been so badly damaged by age -- someone who can at least remember what life was like when her children were babies.

You said a man needs a full night's sleep so he can put in a day's work, and a mother can nap if she must. Did you say NAP?!!! You must be kidding. If I nap will YOU come over and do my laundry and cleaning and mending and baking and cooking?

My 11-month-old is already walking. She goes for the wall plugs, eats paper and climbs furniture like a monkey. My two-year-old is as fast as a streak of lightning. If I let her out of my sight for one minute, our home would have to be declared a disaster area.

Bedtime for me is 11:30 and then I can look forward to getting up at least twice during the night with the baby who is teething or the other one who wants a bottle. And my husband should not be bothered, you say. I just about had him seeing things my way when YOU came along with this lousy column. Thanks for nothing. --- READY TO DROP

Dear Ready: I still say you can nap if you want to. Or would you rather be a martyr? Maybe you can't sleep, but just getting off your feet for an hour or so will give you added energy. Try it and leave your husband alone.

Dear Ann Landers: For the past 10 years I've been a secretary to a successful and attractive business man who has a reputation for entertaining women other than his wife. The office gossip has it that our boss is involved in an affair with a woman who is employed here. She is unmarried, good looking and well liked.

The boss goes on frequent business trips. Recently, he and this woman have been absent from the office at the same time. The best guessers say they are together.

This is not my business and I don't wish to make it mine. But now the boss's wife has begun telephoning during the boss's absence -- pumping me for information. She'll ask, "Is Miss Soandso in today?" Or, "I would like Miss Soandso to call me. Please see that she gets the message."

I've tried to be evasive but today she nailed me by saying, "I'll hold the phone while you go see if Miss Soandso is in." When I told her I couldn't leave my desk because I was expecting some important calls, she was furious.

My husband says as a loyal employee I must tell the boss about her inquiries. I hate being in the middle. How shall I deal with the wife? Should I tell my boss? Please advise me. ---FRACTIONATED

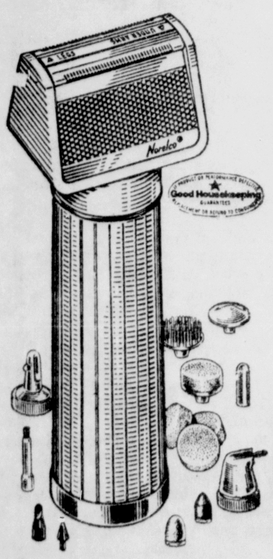

Dear Frac: You are under no obligation to serve as a private eye for either the boss or his wife. If you are wise you'll have no part of such action.

Tell the boss's wife if she wishes to speak with Miss Soandso to call her direct. Surely Miss Soandso has a telephone at her desk. As for the boss, report nothing.

Looking Back Over The Years

50 years ago
May 12, 1917

Isaac Cloin aged 82 years, died on May 11th, at his home south of Sikeston.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L. L. D.

THE CASE OF THE WELL BEGATTEN MOTHER

Numerically, the odds were against Carol. While she had five children with four different fathers, she didn't have even one husband. As a result, despite the fact that she worked very hard at being a mother, she needed help. As a temporary measure, she permitted one of her children to remain with her good friend Mr. Arnold. As it turned out, however, Mr. Arnold's first name could have been Benedict for after three years, he went to court and sought legal custody of the child.

"An unmarried woman who has four out of five children with different men," he told the judge, "obviously, isn't a fit mother. While others sew, she reaps."

"I am so a fit mother" declared Carol. "Not only do I love my children, but I work hard and support them all. While I may not have a husband, you can't have everything."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Mr. Arnold to have custody of Carol's child?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that to grant custody to a non parent, it must be proved that a natural parent is unfit. In this case, the judge noted, there has been no such proof. While Mr. Arnold's argument is not without force, having 4 out of 5 children by different men does not, as a matter of law, establish a mother as being unfit. Considering all the facts, he concluded, it is in the best interest of the child that the child's custody remain with the mother.

(Based upon a 1965 U. S. Dist. Ct. of Appeals Decision)

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

A landlord who has the duty to keep premises in repair cannot, generally, be held responsible for injuries resulting from a defective condition unless he fails to make repairs within a reasonable time after notice of such defects. Consequently, if a tenant observes a condition that should be fixed, such as a cracking ceiling, a broken or leaking pipe, etc., he should report it to his landlord in writing immediately.

Editor Blanton:

It has been our opinion that the climate for Right to Work in Missouri is definitely improving. This past weekend in Jefferson City we were given further proof that the issue is high in the minds of the thinking people.

This was the Twelfth Annual Session of the Missouri Intercollegiate State Legislature. Students from most of the Colleges in the state participated. The sessions are patterned after the regular legislature. Bills are introduced, committees hold hearings and the bills are debated on the floor. The sessions are held in the regular House and Senate Chambers to give an air of authenticity to the proceedings.

Eighty - two bills were introduced and processed during the two day session. It was significant to note that the Right to Work Bill was considered one of the more important bills. The debate and the vote were more bi-partisan than expected. It was the only bill on which the House suspended their rules to permit further debate. It passed in the House by a vote of 81 to 63 and in the Senate 24 to 12.

Here were several hundred clean, alert, serious, articulate young Americans. No beards, no un-cut heads of hair, no protests, no drugs, no profanity, and UNFORTUNATELY no headlines in the newspapers.

Gene Mittelberg, Executive Secretary of Missourians for Right to Work said the action taken by this student assembly could well reflect the attitude of Public Opinion in Missouri on Right to Work.

He went on to say "We saw our future leaders in action. We heard them speak. Their stand in favor of the Right to Work issue, and against Compulsory Unionism, was most encouraging to our organization."

Looking Back Over The Years

May 12, 1917

Isaac Cloin aged 82 years, died on May 11th, at his home south of Sikeston.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L. L. D.

THE CASE OF THE WELL BEGATTEN MOTHER

Numerically, the odds were against Carol. While she had five children with four different fathers, she didn't have even one husband. As a result, despite the fact that she worked very hard at being a mother, she needed help. As a temporary measure, she permitted one of her children to remain with her good friend Mr. Arnold. As it turned out, however, Mr. Arnold's first name could have been Benedict for after three years, he went to court and sought legal custody of the child.

"An unmarried woman who has four out of five children with different men," he told the judge, "obviously, isn't a fit mother. While others sew, she reaps."

"I am so a fit mother" declared Carol. "Not only do I love my children, but I work hard and support them all. While I may not have a husband, you can't have everything."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Mr. Arnold to have custody of Carol's child?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that to grant custody to a non parent, it must be proved that a natural parent is unfit. In this case, the judge noted, there has been no such proof. While Mr. Arnold's argument is not without force, having 4 out of 5 children by different men does not, as a matter of law, establish a mother as being unfit. Considering all the facts, he concluded, it is in the best interest of the child that the child's custody remain with the mother.

(Based upon a 1965 U. S. Dist. Ct. of Appeals Decision)

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

A landlord who has the duty to keep premises in repair cannot, generally, be held responsible for injuries resulting from a defective condition unless he fails to make repairs within a reasonable time after notice of such defects. Consequently, if a tenant observes a condition that should be fixed, such as a cracking ceiling, a broken or leaking pipe, etc., he should report it to his landlord in writing immediately.

J. F. Hoffman, inventor of various types of novelty furniture and children's scooters and toys of Chicago, Ill., was in Sikeston Tuesday making investigation concerning the possibility of locating a furniture and novelty factory here that would employ approximately 400 people. He explained that the company he represented had recently put in a factory of this type at Hermann and that quite a bit of the labor in such a plant can be done by men who are too old for employment in many occupations.

The Prayer

From The Upper Room

Let not the sun go down upon your wrath. (Ephesians 4:26)

PRAYER: Our gracious and loving heavenly Father, help us, we pray, to keep our family life harmonious. Give us grace to speak the gentle word that overcomes ill will. May we be of such a spirit that we are always ready both to seek and to grant forgiveness. For Jesus Christ's sake. Amen.

Editor Blanton:

It has been our opinion that the climate for Right to Work in Missouri is definitely improving. This past weekend in Jefferson City we were given further proof that the issue is high in the minds of the thinking people.

This was the Twelfth Annual Session of the Missouri Intercollegiate State Legislature. Students from most of the Colleges in the state participated. The sessions are patterned after the regular legislature. Bills are introduced, committees hold hearings and the bills are debated on the floor. The sessions are held in the regular House and Senate Chambers to give an air of authenticity to the proceedings.

Eighty-two bills were introduced and processed during the two day session. It was significant to note that the Right to Work Bill was considered one of the more important bills. The debate and the vote were more bi-partisan than expected. It was the only bill on which the House suspended their rules to permit further debate. It passed in the House by a vote of 81 to 63 and in the Senate 24 to 12.

Here were several hundred clean, alert, serious, articulate young Americans. No beards, no un-cut heads of hair, no protests, no drugs, no profanity, and UNFORTUNATELY no headlines in the newspapers.

Gene Mittelberg, Executive Secretary of Missourians for Right to Work said the action taken by this student assembly could well reflect the attitude of Public Opinion in Missouri on Right to Work.

He went on to say "We saw our future leaders in action. We heard them speak. Their stand in favor of the Right to Work issue, and against Compulsory Unionism, was most encouraging to our organization."

TOO SOON

Death came so much quicker than we thought
So many things we yet had planned to do;
So many things we thought we would share,
So much laughter I had planned with you!
So many funny things had happened ---
So many laughing times we had,
So many things I want to tell you,
When will your heart once more be glad?

Found Guilty Of Counterfeit Pill Charge

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- A jury of 10 men and two women in Federal District Court Monday found Carl F. McCubbin, 49, of Horse Cave, Ky., guilty on five counts of an indictment charging him with passing counterfeit amphetamine tablets to an undercover government agent.

Sentencing was set for Wednesday, May 17, by Judge Roy W. Harper.

The government's case was handled by Irvin Ruzicka of the district attorney's office.

He put two witnesses on the stand -- Harold Leap, the undercover agent who testified he purchased 100,000 of such tablets from the defendant -- and George E. Walper, senior analyst for Smith, Cline and French Laboratories.

Walper, on the witness stand, said he had analyzed the tablets purchased by Leap from the defendant and that they gave the appearance of Dexedrine, an amphetamine derivative.

Leap told of making arrangements to meet McCubbin in Cape Girardeau on Dec. 27, 1966.

He related events of the meeting and of the purchase of the 100,000 tablets which were in four different types of counterfeit drugs in quantities of 25,000 each.

He said the tablets gave the appearance of Dexedrine and amphetamine pills even to the shape and color, but an analysis showed they were caffeine instead.

Leap said the defendant referred to the tablets as "good stuff," which in the illiegal drug traffic means amphetamine, sometimes referred to as "bennies."

He said he was to pay the defendant $15 per thousand for the pills or $1,500.

Robert Schneider of Horse Cave, attorney for the defendant, put three witnesses on the stand - the defendant; his brother, Charles McCubbin, and Glenn Garrison, mayor of Horse Cave.

The defense sought to establish that no intent to defraud was intended, that McCubbin sold caffeine pills merely as a way of making a living and that the labels on the bottles were removed so that the address of the company from which McCubbin purchased the pills would not be available to "just anyone."

McCubbin said from the witness stand that he was only protecting his business interests when he removed the labels. He stated the government agent was aware of what he was purchasing - caffeine tablets -- and he was not attempting to pass them off as "good stuff."

Caffeine tablets have the same effect on the consumer as drinking a cup of coffee would have, only you don't have to stop to drink the coffee, McCubbin told the court.

His brother stated he had been with the defendant the night of the arrest and reiterated statements made by the defendant.

Mayor Garrison testified to the character of the defendant, saying he had known him many years and that McCubbin was of good reputation in Horse Cave. He added it was of somewhat general knowledge that the defendant sold caffeine tablets.

Tuesday a jury was selected to open a consolidated civil case for personal injuries to be heard in court today. The suit involves Mary A. Glover vs. Rhodes Oil Corp., and Dwight Clifton Rhodes, administrator, vs. Mary Apperson Glover.

The first plaintiff is asking $50,000 judgment for personal injuries. The second plaintiff is asking judgment for injuries and a death from a motor vehicle accident.

excavated the rock-choked passage, thinking perhaps the boys were caught in the fall. They apparently were not.

Civil Defense workers, cave rescue teams from Missouri and Illinois as well as Washington, D. C., and the Missouri National Guard joined in the search for the boys.

The Hoag brothers and the Dowell boy were last seen about 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, carrying a shovel and a flashlight, as they entered a cave recently uncovered by construction workers carving out a bed for a new highway.

Individuals and teams of experienced cave explorers spent all Wednesday night and Thursday squirming through narrow passages underlying the area, but found no trace of the boys.

Police dogs were brought in but were unable to work in the narrow confines.

Bob Harrison, commander of the Mark Twain Emergency Squad, said there was a slide in a cave passage about 20 feet to the right of the entrance that blocked rescue teams from entering a section of the cave running along the face of the bluff.

Mayor Harry Musgrove asked for a National Guard company to begin a search at dawn in an area east of the cave. Musgrove acted in response to a request from the Hoag family, which has been unanimous in feeling that the boys are not in Murphy's Cave, but perhaps in other caves uncovered by construction work.

About 400 yards to the east two new cave entrances were opened by earth moving equipment, one was filled in, but the other is open.

The Hoags-mother, father, seven brothers and four sisters — were unwilling to stand-by while others search for the boy and organized their own search party. They combed the hills Thursday night.

been speculation the Soviet destroyers made passes at the Walker because of cooling relations between the two powers over Vietnam.

American diplomats hoped the Soviets would order their warship skippers to keep a safe distance from American craft and end the incidents.

American authorities don't really expect this will be the last of such clashes. The history of the cold war is pocked with charges and countercharges of aircraft buzzings, gunfire, collisions and similar actions.

Although officials would not discuss rules of engagement, it was understood that U.S. Navy ship captains are under instructions to keep their courses and to show firmness in the face of harassment by Soviet vessels.

However, defense officials acknowledged there have been occasions when American commanders have had to give way to avoid collisions.

There is a disposition in some official quarters to view the bumping of the Walker as the unintended result of deliberately close passes by the Soviets.

The United States reported no casualties. Damage was described by the Pentagon as light in both collisions.

A Navy spokesman said the Walker took a 6-inch hole, 10 feet above her waterline Thursday. The Wednesday bump reportedly resulted in a broken antenna.

Navy sources said the Soviet and American vessels were steaming very slowly.

The Soviet broadcast did not say anything about damage or casualties.

Some Pentagon authorities suggested the Soviets might have been trying to impress on the Americans that the Soviets regard the waters off Siberia as their sphere.

This was borne out to some extent by Moscow Radio's reference to American and Japanese warships holding joint exercises "near the coasts of the U.S.S.R."

According to data provided by the Pentagon, the Wednesday incident occurred about 270 miles due east of the Soviet port and naval base of Vladivostok and about 100 miles from the nearest Soviet land. The Thursday collision was pinpointed at about 210 miles southeast of Vladivostok.

Thus, both clashes were well outside the three-mile limit recognized by the United States as territorial waters.

Four Injured In Accident

MOREHOUSE -- Four persons were injured in a two-vehicle accident at the intersection of U. S. 60 and Route E, a quarter of a mile south of here at 10 a.m. today.

The highway patrol said a pickup truck driven by Hurley Laster, 57, Sikeston, pulled onto U. S. 60 from Route E and into the path of a car driven by Cova Whobrey, 48, Middleton, Ky.

Injured were Mrs. Whobrey, cut lip and possible fractured ribs; Nelly Whobrey, 37, Livermore, Ky., skull fracture and fractured ribs; Leslie Whobrey, Livermore, facial cuts, and Arvil Nickell, 53, Sikeston, a passenger in the pickup truck, possible broken finger.

Laster was charged with careless and imprudent driving, failure to yield right of way.

Found Guilty Of Counterfeit Pill Charge

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- A jury of 10 men and two women in Federal District Court Monday found Carl F. McCubbin, 49, of Horse Cave, Ky., guilty on five counts of an indictment charging him with passing counterfeit amphetamine tablets to an undercover government agent.

Sentencing was set for Wednesday, May 17, by Judge Roy W. Harper.

The government's case was handled by Irvin Ruzicka of the district attorney's office.

He put two witnesses on the stand -- Harold Leap, the undercover agent who testified he purchased 100,000 of such tablets from the defendant -- and George E. Walper, senior analyst for Smith, Cline and French Laboratories.

Walper, on the witness stand, said he had analyzed the tablets purchased by Leap from the defendant and that they gave the appearance of Dexedrine, an amphetamine derivative.

Leap told of making arrangements to meet McCubbin in Cape Girardeau on Dec. 27, 1966.

He related events of the meeting and of the purchase of the 100,000 tablets which were in four different types of counterfeit drugs in quantities of 25,000 each.

He said the tablets gave the appearance of Dexedrine and amphetamine pills even to the shape and color, but an analysis showed they were caffeine instead.

Leap said the defendant referred to the tablets as "good stuff," which in the illegal drug traffic means amphetamine, sometimes referred to as "bennies."

He said he was to pay the defendant $15 per thousand for the pills or $1,500.

Robert Schneider of Horse Cave, attorney for the defendant, put three witnesses on the stand - the defendant; his brother, Charles McCubbin, and Glenn Garrison, mayor of Horse Cave.

The defense sought to establish that no intent to defraud was intended, that McCubbin sold caffeine pills merely as a way of making a living and that the labels on the bottles were removed so that the address of the company from which McCubbin purchased the pills would not be available to "just anyone."

McCubbin said from the witness stand that he was only protecting his business interests when he removed the labels. He stated the government agent was aware of what he was purchasing - caffeine tablets -- and he was not attempting to pass them off as "good stuff."

Caffeine tablets have the same effect on the consumer as drinking a cup of coffee would have, only you don't have to stop to drink the coffee, McCubbin told the court.

His brother stated he had been with the defendant the night of the arrest and reiterated statements made by the defendant.

Mayor Garrison testified to the character of the defendant, saying he had known him many years and that McCubbin was of good reputation in Horse Cave. He added it was of somewhat general knowledge that the defendant sold caffeine tablets.

Tuesday a jury was selected to open a consolidated civil case for personal injuries to be heard in court today. The suit involves Mary A. Glover vs. Rhodes Oil Corp., and Dwight Clifton Rhodes, administrator, vs. Mary Apperson Glover.

The first plaintiff is asking $50,000 judgment for personal injuries. The second plaintiff is asking judgment for injuries and a death from a motor vehicle accident.

Four representatives of the Sikeston Optimist Club agreed to supervise baseball or softball teams for youths in two age groups, 8-11 and 12-15 years old, served by the community action agency.

A swimming program also is being readied for the summer.

Other programs planned include needle work, sewing, and music lessons. Several civic and church groups are being contacted to provide guidance with other planned projects.

The Office of Economic Opportunity has confirmed the funding of $7,000 for the youth program. An additional $4,000 may be received later for the program, Paylor said.

been speculation the Soviet destroyers made passes at the Walker because of cooling relations between the two powers over Vietnam.

American diplomats hoped the Soviets would order their warship skippers to keep a safe distance from American craft and end the incidents.

American authorities don't really expect this will be the last of such clashes. The history of the cold war is pocked with charges and countercharges of aircraft buzzings, gunfire, collisions and similar actions.

Although officials would not discuss rules of engagement, it was understood that U.S. Navy ship captains are under instructions to keep their courses and to show firmness in the face of harassment by Soviet vessels.

However, defense officials acknowledged there have been occasions when American commanders have had to give way to avoid collisions.

There is a disposition in some official quarters to view the bumping of the Walker as the unintended result of deliberately close passes by the Soviets.

The United States reported no casualties. Damage was described by the Pentagon as light in both collisions.

A Navy spokesman said the Walker took a 6-inch hole, 10 feet above her waterline Thursday. The Wednesday bump reportedly resulted in a broken antenna.

Navy sources said the Soviet and American vessels were steaming very slowly.

The Soviet broadcast did not say anything about damage or casualties.

Some Pentagon authorities suggested the Soviets might have been trying to impress on the Americans that the Soviets regard the waters off Siberia as their sphere.

This was borne out to some extent by Moscow Radio's reference to American and Japanese warships holding joint exercises "near the coasts of the U.S.S.R."

According to data provided by the Pentagon, the Wednesday incident occurred about 270 miles due east of the Soviet port and naval base of Vladivostok and about 100 miles from the nearest Soviet land. The Thursday collision was pinpointed at about 210 miles southeast of Vladivostok.

Thus, both clashes were well outside the three-mile limit recognized by the United States as territorial waters.

Four Injured In Accident

MOREHOUSE – Four persons were injured in a two-vehicle accident at the intersection of U. S. 60 and Route E, a quarter of a mile south of here at 10 a.m. today.

The highway patrol said a pickup truck driven by Hurley Laster, 57, Sikeston, pulled onto U. S. 60 from Route E and into the path of a car driven by Cova Whobrey, 48, Middleton, Ky.

Injured were Mrs. Whobrey, cut lip and possible fractured ribs; Nelly Whobrey, 37, Livermore, Ky., skull fracture and fractured ribs; Leslie Whobrey, Livermore, facial cuts, and Arvil Nickell, 53, Sikeston, a passenger in the pickup truck, possible broken finger.

Laster was charged with careless and imprudent driving, failure to yield right of way.

It's really not hard to understand. We have consistently low bank rates; prompt credit approval. And our repayment plans are individualized. That means you have a choice of schedules for paying us back . . .we'll go along with your budget.

Besides, First National has a certain flair about making a loan. We figure that even when you're borrowing money, instead of putting it in a savings plan or checking account, you're still doing us a favor. Because we can't prosper unless we serve you. . .not just satisfactorily, but spectacularly. So we go overboard on being hospitable; warm; courteous.
